I WAS A TEENAGE HERCULES

Ryan Gosling gives a portrait of a hero as a young man

Talk about stretching as an actor. When Ryan Gosling auditioned (seven times) for the title role on Young Hercules, he padded himself to give a more muscular appearance. "I'm not supercut, and I don't work out all the time," the 17-year-old says during a phone call from New Zealand, where the action-adventure series (from the creators of Hercules: The Legendary Journeys and Xena: Warrior Princess) is filmed. "[So] I put on six T-shirts and tried to look bigger." A Hercules prequel, Young Hercules (Fox Kids Network, weekdays at 4:30 P.M./ET), follows the adventures of a still-growing teenager and his two friends who attend an academy for warriors. "It's about a kid turning into a hero," Gosling says.

The London, Ontario, native landed his breakthrough role last year on UPN's teen series Breaker High, playing Sean Hanlon. That job prepared Gosling for the intense shooting schedule of Young Hercules, which keeps him so busy that he doesn't have much time for a social life, let alone a girlfriend. "My mom, that's the only woman in my life," he jokes. "I'm not getting any offers." So is the actor ready to become the next teen pinup? "For now, I'm just going to keep doing the work and hope I don't get fired. If people want to put me up on their walls, I'll love it." —Annabel Vered

A PRINCE AMONG PRODUCERS

His mum is the queen of England, but please don't call Edward Windsor by his royal moniker. The TV producer sometimes known as a prince isn't a fan of titles. "In Britain, if you've got a title, you obviously don't have any brains, so there's no point in talking about anything else," Windsor said at a PBS press conference for Crown & Country (premiering Sept. 27), the latest documentary presented by his Ardent Productions. "I'm just a journalist," he demurred. (He wrote, produced and hosts the six-part series.) But being a prince gives him a slight advantage. Says Bill Grant, director of features programming for WNET, the New York station presenting Crown: "Edward has some pretty good contacts. All productions have problems, but access was not one on this one." —Janet Weeks

A NEW MILLENNIUM

I graduated from navy blue polyester to suits and heels," jokes Klea Scott, explaining the difference between her last series, the CBS cop show Brooklyn South, and her new gig on Fox's revamped Millennium, starting October 2. Scott, 29, feels South got a raw deal. "It was terrific by the end, and its cancellation indicated a lack of faith." Still, she's excited about her new role, FBI special agent Emma Hollis, Frank Black's (Lance Henriksen) new partner. "We have a student-mentor relationship," she says. "We'll probably remain platonic." Scott, who is married to stage actor/director John Langs, insists that despite her intense TV roles, she has a lighter side. "I recently did a short film called 'Vice Girls,' about meter maids who double as bad imitations of the Spice Girls." And on the usually dark Millennium, "there will be a little levity between Lance and me." —Heane Rudolph

COMMERCIAL SUCCESS

Although she has been a guest star on everything from Friends to Walker, Texas Ranger and appeared in "Dr. Dolittle," it was a series of Nike commercials that made Kyla Pratt an actress in demand. The precocious 12-year-old talks trash to WNBA stars Lisa Leslie, Cynthia Cooper and Sheryl Swoopes in the commercials, which began airing in June. The popularity of the spots has led to other sassy roles, and that suits her just fine. "I like being the bad girl," she says. "I like being the nerd, too, but I prefer the attitude." In fact, she passed up a guest role as "a little sweet girl" on NYPD Blue to make the commercials.

WNBA fan Rosie O'Donnell was so impressed that she hired Pratt for a similar series to promote her talk show. The seventh-grader also recently appeared on Smart Guy, has an upcoming role on Any Day Now and is in negotiations to develop her own sitcom. "I'm already different from everybody else," she says. "I want to be extremely different." —Rich Sands

ALAN SHEPARD JR.

Alan Shepard Jr., the first American to fly in space, died July 21 at age 74 of leukemia. Former CBS News anchor Walter Cronkite, one of Shepard's friends, covered his missions, including the Freedom 7 flight in 1961. Cronkite shares some thoughts on the late astronaut and his accomplishments.

Tribute

TV GUIDE: What kind of man was Alan Shepard?

Walter Cronkite: He was a dedicated individual. He was the kind of person who was likely to assume leadership in almost any group. While he worked hard, he could play hard as well and enjoyed life.

TVG: What were your thoughts during the coverage of Shepard's first space flight on May 5, 1961?

WC: We were very concerned. Many of us felt that perhaps [NASA was] rushing a manned flight in order to try to catch up with the Russians. There was a long hold of several hours while he was waiting in the capsule. I was quite anxious, so I felt great relief and a certain elation that it went well.

TVG: What was the effect of that first flight?

WC: It was a major step to regain our belief in ourselves, to begin to think [Americans] were at least in the race with the Russians.

TVG: Is there one telling story about Shepard?

WC: I think it is the one the world shared. That was [in 1971], when he smuggled a golf club and balls aboard the Apollo 14 mission and drove a golf ball on the moon. Even in the most serious moments, he could find a good joke to lighten the moment. —I.R.

SWING SHIFT

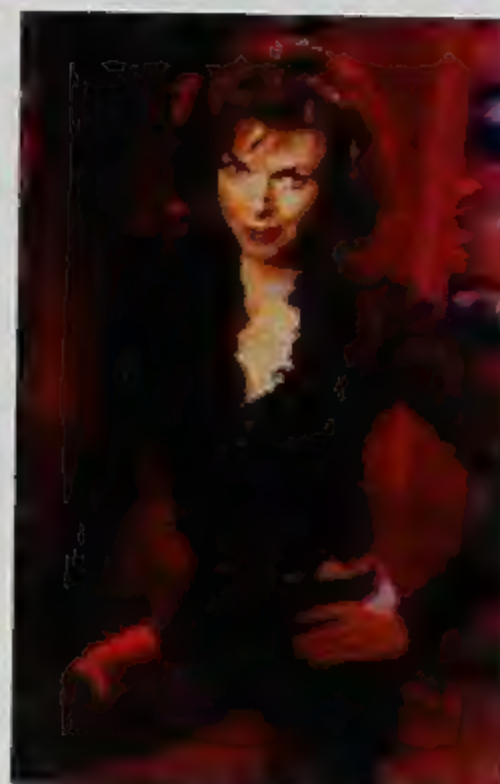

As the new TV season heats up, the networks have offered up a host of eye-catching promotional spots. CBS's new Brian Benben Show was introduced with an attention-grabbing promo featuring the star shamelessly wearing an Ally McBeal-length skirt (a nod to his competition), and ABC's revamped We Love TV campaign keeps getting better (a favorite: BEFORE TV, TWO WORLD WARS. AFTER TV, ZERO). Other advertisements are decidedly more retro: TV Land produced a series of 60-Second Sitcoms that lovingly spoof shows from the '50s. And although the WB's Michigan J. Frog won't trade in his top hat and cane for a zoot suit, the animated amphibian is jumping in higher style this year, backed up by neo-swing band Royal Crown Revue. "With other lyrics, it could be a regular song, but they wanted old Michigan J. Frog in there," says the band's Bill Ungerman. "We filmed on the Warner Bros. lot without him, but they'll zap him in there. Our costar, the frog." —Stef McDonald

CONFLICT'S RESOLUTION

Killing off actor Kevin Kilner in the second-season premiere will allow the syndicated series Gene Roddenberry's Earth: Final Conflict (week of October 5; check TV GUIDE listings) to evolve into an ensemble drama, according to costar Lisa Howard (right). "As an actor, Kevin is happy to be moving on because at this stage in his career he really wants to be in leading-man type vehicles," Howard says. "Now we're free to explore the relationships between [Howard's alter ego, Capt.] Lili [Marquette], the resistance and the [enemy] Taelons. She's the one person the audience can identify with."

Howard welcomes her enhanced role on the show but regrets its impact on her lifestyle. "I used up all my frequent-flyer miles commuting between Toronto and the set of Suddenly Susan in L.A.," she says with a laugh. "I loved playing Judd Nelson's evil ex-wife, Margo Fargo, and when I was done, I could spend time with my husband [former TV GUIDE writer Daniel Howard Cerone]." Still, given the chance, Howard would go to extremes to accommodate Suddenly Susan into her schedule. "I love the character. I try to play her like her Prozac dosage is just a little off, and after the intensity of a one-hour drama, you need a little silliness." —José A. Martínez

Special delivery

Whether she likes it or not, CBS News's This Morning anchor Jane Robelot (left) will soon be providing a huge sweeps stunt for her network. She's due to give birth to her first child November 25, setting up the inevitable on-air countdown to delivery day. "I'm just hoping he'll let mommy stay on the air through the whole thing," says Robelot, 37, of her boy to be. "I'm going to work as long as I can. So far I haven't had any problems. Not even morning sickness." And how many more kids do she and her husband, CBS News cameraman Mario DeCarvalho, want? "Two is reasonable, but I'd like four. Whoops. My husband just came into the room and looked at me like I'm crazy."

OK. So you're an actor named Tim Matheson (right), starring in two movies overlapping on September 27. In one, Showtime's Rescuers: Stories of Courage—Two Families, you're married to Daryl Hannah. In the other, CBS's Forever Love, you're hitched to Reba McEntire. What do you tell the real-life wife? "She's very used to it," he says of Megan, his spouse of 13 years. "For her, it wasn't a problem because these films were not highly sexual. But when I do movies like the one with Mimi Rogers [NBC's A Kiss to Die For from 1993] where you basically take your clothes off and roll around for three weeks, she has a problem with that."

Ladies man

Movie-bound?

The scene: King of the Hill's season premiere party at the House of Blues in Los Angeles. The freebies: fried chicken fingers and plastic fire-chief hats. The man of honor: series creator Mike Judge, who gave us Beavis and Butt-head and King's Hank Hill (left). The scoop: The Fox series may become a feature film. "There's talk about it, but nothing concrete yet," Judge says. And while he has lined up such stars as Matthew McConaughey and Billy Bob Thornton to provide guest voices this season, there's one more he would like to add to the list. "I saw Mister Rogers on TV today. I thought, 'That guy oughta do a voice for us.' But I don't think he'd do it. Do you?" We put in a call, but Fred Rogers was unavailable for comment.

Aaron Sorkin (right), creator, writer and executive producer of ABC's new Tuesday sitcom Sports Night, which takes us behind the scenes at a live TV show, doesn't think sports haters will be scared off by the title. "I wrote the movie 'A Few Good Men,' and I have to believe that people other than Marines went to see it," Sorkin says. "And I wrote 'The American President,' and I'm pretty sure people who weren't the president went to see that, too. A knowledge or affection for sports absolutely is not required. Just like an affection for trauma surgery isn't required to watch ER." Touché.

CHEERS & JEERS

JEERS to the invasion of the MTV personalities. They're everywhere you look this season. VJ John Sencio earns his Bill Murray-like stripes along with Ellen's David Anthony Higgins in the WB's Army Show. Jacinda Barrett of The Real World plays a jasmine-scented Juliet in Hawaii on NBC's Wind on Water. And Singled Out's Chris Hardwick plays a loosely wired lounge guitarist on UPN's Guys Like Us. Why does this merit a Jeer? Why, you may ask, shouldn't these young people get a break? Well, as avid students of the broadcasting industry, we can see where this trend is headed. Soon, every person who has ever introduced a Smashing Pumpkins video will be recruited for their own series. And you know what that means, don't you? Four nightmarish words: The Jesse Camp Show!

Higgins and Sencio report for duty.

CHEERS to an obliging superstar. All too often, when an athlete is on the threshold of breaking a significant record, he or she will stall on the cusp of greatness, dragging out the suspense too long. Not Mark McGwire. After catching Babe Ruth, McGwire, the Maestro of the Moon Shot, promptly tied and then passed the late Roger Maris for the most home runs hit in a single season. And he did it on successive days in nationally televised games in front of his home crowd at Busch Stadium, with his parents and his 10-year-old son, Matt, in attendance, as well as all six of Maris's offspring, and his closest rival, Sammy Sosa, on the field. Obviously the big guy has a flair for drama that would put Otto Preminger to shame. OK, McGwire's date with destiny interrupted the Jerry Lewis telethon in some markets. But that's a small price to pay for such a thrilling memory.

JEERS to convenient forgetfulness. The creators of Party of Five have announced plans for a spin-off series in which the adopted Sarah (Jennifer Love Hewitt) will conduct a protracted search for her birth parents. Actually, that shouldn't take too long. As any devoted P5 fan can tell you, Sarah already identified and met with her biological mother two seasons ago with Bailey's help. And that encounter with her mother (memorably played by Patricia Heaton of Everybody Loves Raymond) was so disillusioning, we doubt very much that Sarah would ever try to repeat it.

CHEERS to the unknown musicians. A couple of current commercials include the anonymous contributions of renowned rockers. We love Mitsubishi's campaign, Wake Up and Drive, primarily for the thundering drum beat that pulses through all the spots. Astute music lovers may recognize that molten rhythm: It's lifted from Iggy Pop's "Lust for Life." And in a commercial for Gap Kids, an evocative ska ditty provides the soundtrack as youngsters climb through an Escher-like maze. The song, "C'mon, C'mon," was written and performed by the group Smash Mouth expressly for the ad, but reaction to the uncredited tune has been so favorable, the band is now planning to put the track on their next album. That's a switch: Usually hit songs are appropriated for commercials not vice versa.

THE ROUSH REVIEW

BY MATT ROUSH

FELICITY

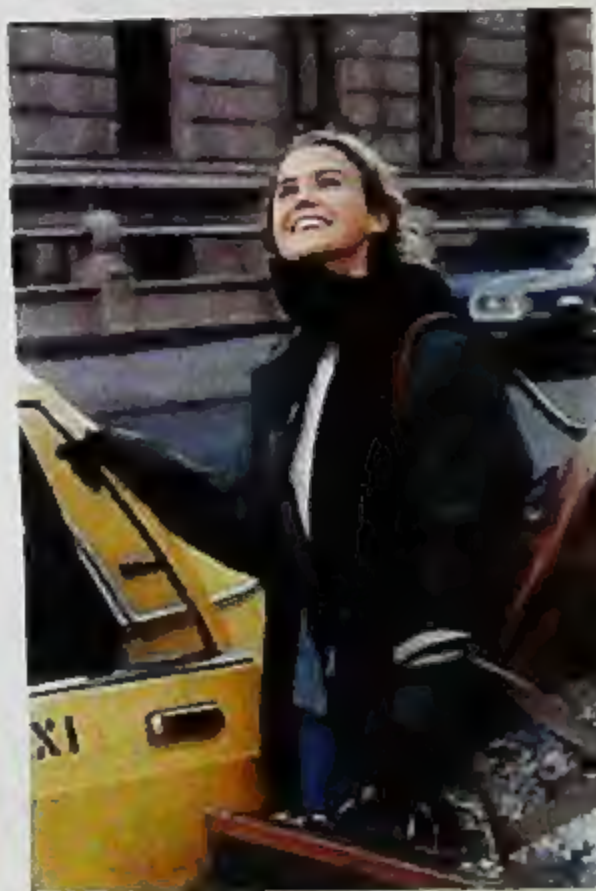

WB, Tuesdays, 9 P.M./ET

My edition of Webster's defines felicity as "happiness; bliss; anything producing happiness; good fortune." Sounds about right.

The arrival of Felicity, the nearest thing this fall to a unanimous critical favorite, easily qualifies as a happy experience, despite the overstuffed syllabus of angst that greets this adorable cast of college students. The most absorbing and entertaining youth soap since the fall 1994 premieres of Party of Five and My So-Called Life, it's sure to send fans of the genre into a state approaching bliss. As for the WB network, already on a roll with such pop phenoms as Dawson's Creek, 7th Heaven and Buffy the Vampire Slayer, this instant winner should only add to its good fortune.

And yet you can't help fearing that this disarmingly heartfelt show may have difficulty surviving its hype. In a mostly buzzless new season, Felicity has been touted with a crescendo of noise that belies its modest charms. Calling anything Ally McBeal Goes to College (as the media have eagerly done, with little discouragement from the WB) raises suspicions of calculation that aren't deserved.

Felicity Porter (the luminous Keri Russell) is no Junior League Ally McBeal. True, she's not above an occasional fit of babbling or a wallow in overdramatized self-pity. But unlike the exasperating bundle of neurotic tics we've come to love to hate in Ally, there's a serene quality to Russell's struggle against insecurity, portrayed with some of the most eloquent silences since Dana Delany's in China Beach.

Certainly the girl has a lot to ponder as she arrives, overwhelmed and vulnerable, at the mythical University of New York. Impulsively dashing her parents' wishes of medical school in California, she heads East to follow her heart, which is somewhat improbably attached to Ben (Scott Speedman), a boy she hardly knows who signed a mash note in her yearbook after graduation.

Felicity's reality check comes fast and furious. Unloading to her sympathetic dorm advisor Noel (Scott Foley), who clearly carries a torch for her, she bumbles, "Am I doomed forever to just be in love and ultimately, I think, significantly hurt?"

At the core of Felicity's appeal is this romantic sense of tremendous stimulation and terrifying possibility, cushioned by new friendships and the rush of at-long-last-independent experience. As Felicity tells her new best friend Julie (Amy Jo Johnson) at a pivotal point of the second episode, "God, I feel all grown-up."

Not so fast. Felicity has a ways to go, but watching her get there will be a joy.

I side with her former French tutor and mentor Sally, with whom she trades tape-recorded confessions in the mail. Sally, an unseen presence who has known her share of heartbreak, tells Felicity, "Things happen to us, but it's our reactions that matter... I can't wait to hear what happens."

Neither can I. Consider me hooked.

MISGUIDED 'MAD CITY'... MEMORABLE MOORE

That wasn't the film I wanted to make," Dustin Hoffman told me.

I ran into the actor in a hotel last December, and he wanted to talk about what went wrong with "Mad City," which makes its premium-channel debut Saturday, September 26, on HBO.

In "Mad City," John Travolta plays a laid-off security guard who returns to the museum where he worked to complain to his boss. After a complicated chain of events, he unintentionally takes a group of visiting schoolchildren hostage. Spotting a story he thinks could rejuvenate his faded career, TV journalist Hoffman files a series of live reports including several with Travolta. If he's good enough, Hoffman reasons, maybe the small-town California story will be picked up by his network.

So, here's the not-so-breaking news from "Mad City": TV reporters sometimes put their careers ahead of responsible journalism. Unfortunately, "Mad City" doesn't say anything about TV news that Paddy Chayefsky's prophetic script for "Network" didn't say better more than 20 years ago.

In my original review of the 1997 film, I had questioned why an actor with Hoffman's clout would want to make a film that didn't advance any discussion of its subject—the sensationalism of television news.

But Hoffman defended his choice, saying: "I wanted to make a film about a situation where one character was trying to exploit the other. But the more he gets to know him, the more he gets to like him. And he has to choose between doing what's best for himself versus doing what's best for the guy."

Hoffman went on to say that director Constantin Costa-Gavras ("Z," "Missing") "wanted to make more of an action picture because that's his tradition." Given Hoffman's interpretation of the script, it's clear the principals involved with "Mad City" were not on the same page.

But everyone was rowing in the same direction on a film I do recommend this week. Indeed, I was surprised by how much I enjoyed it and the lead performance that embodies the bulk of the story, a performance that deserved an Oscar nomination but didn't get one.

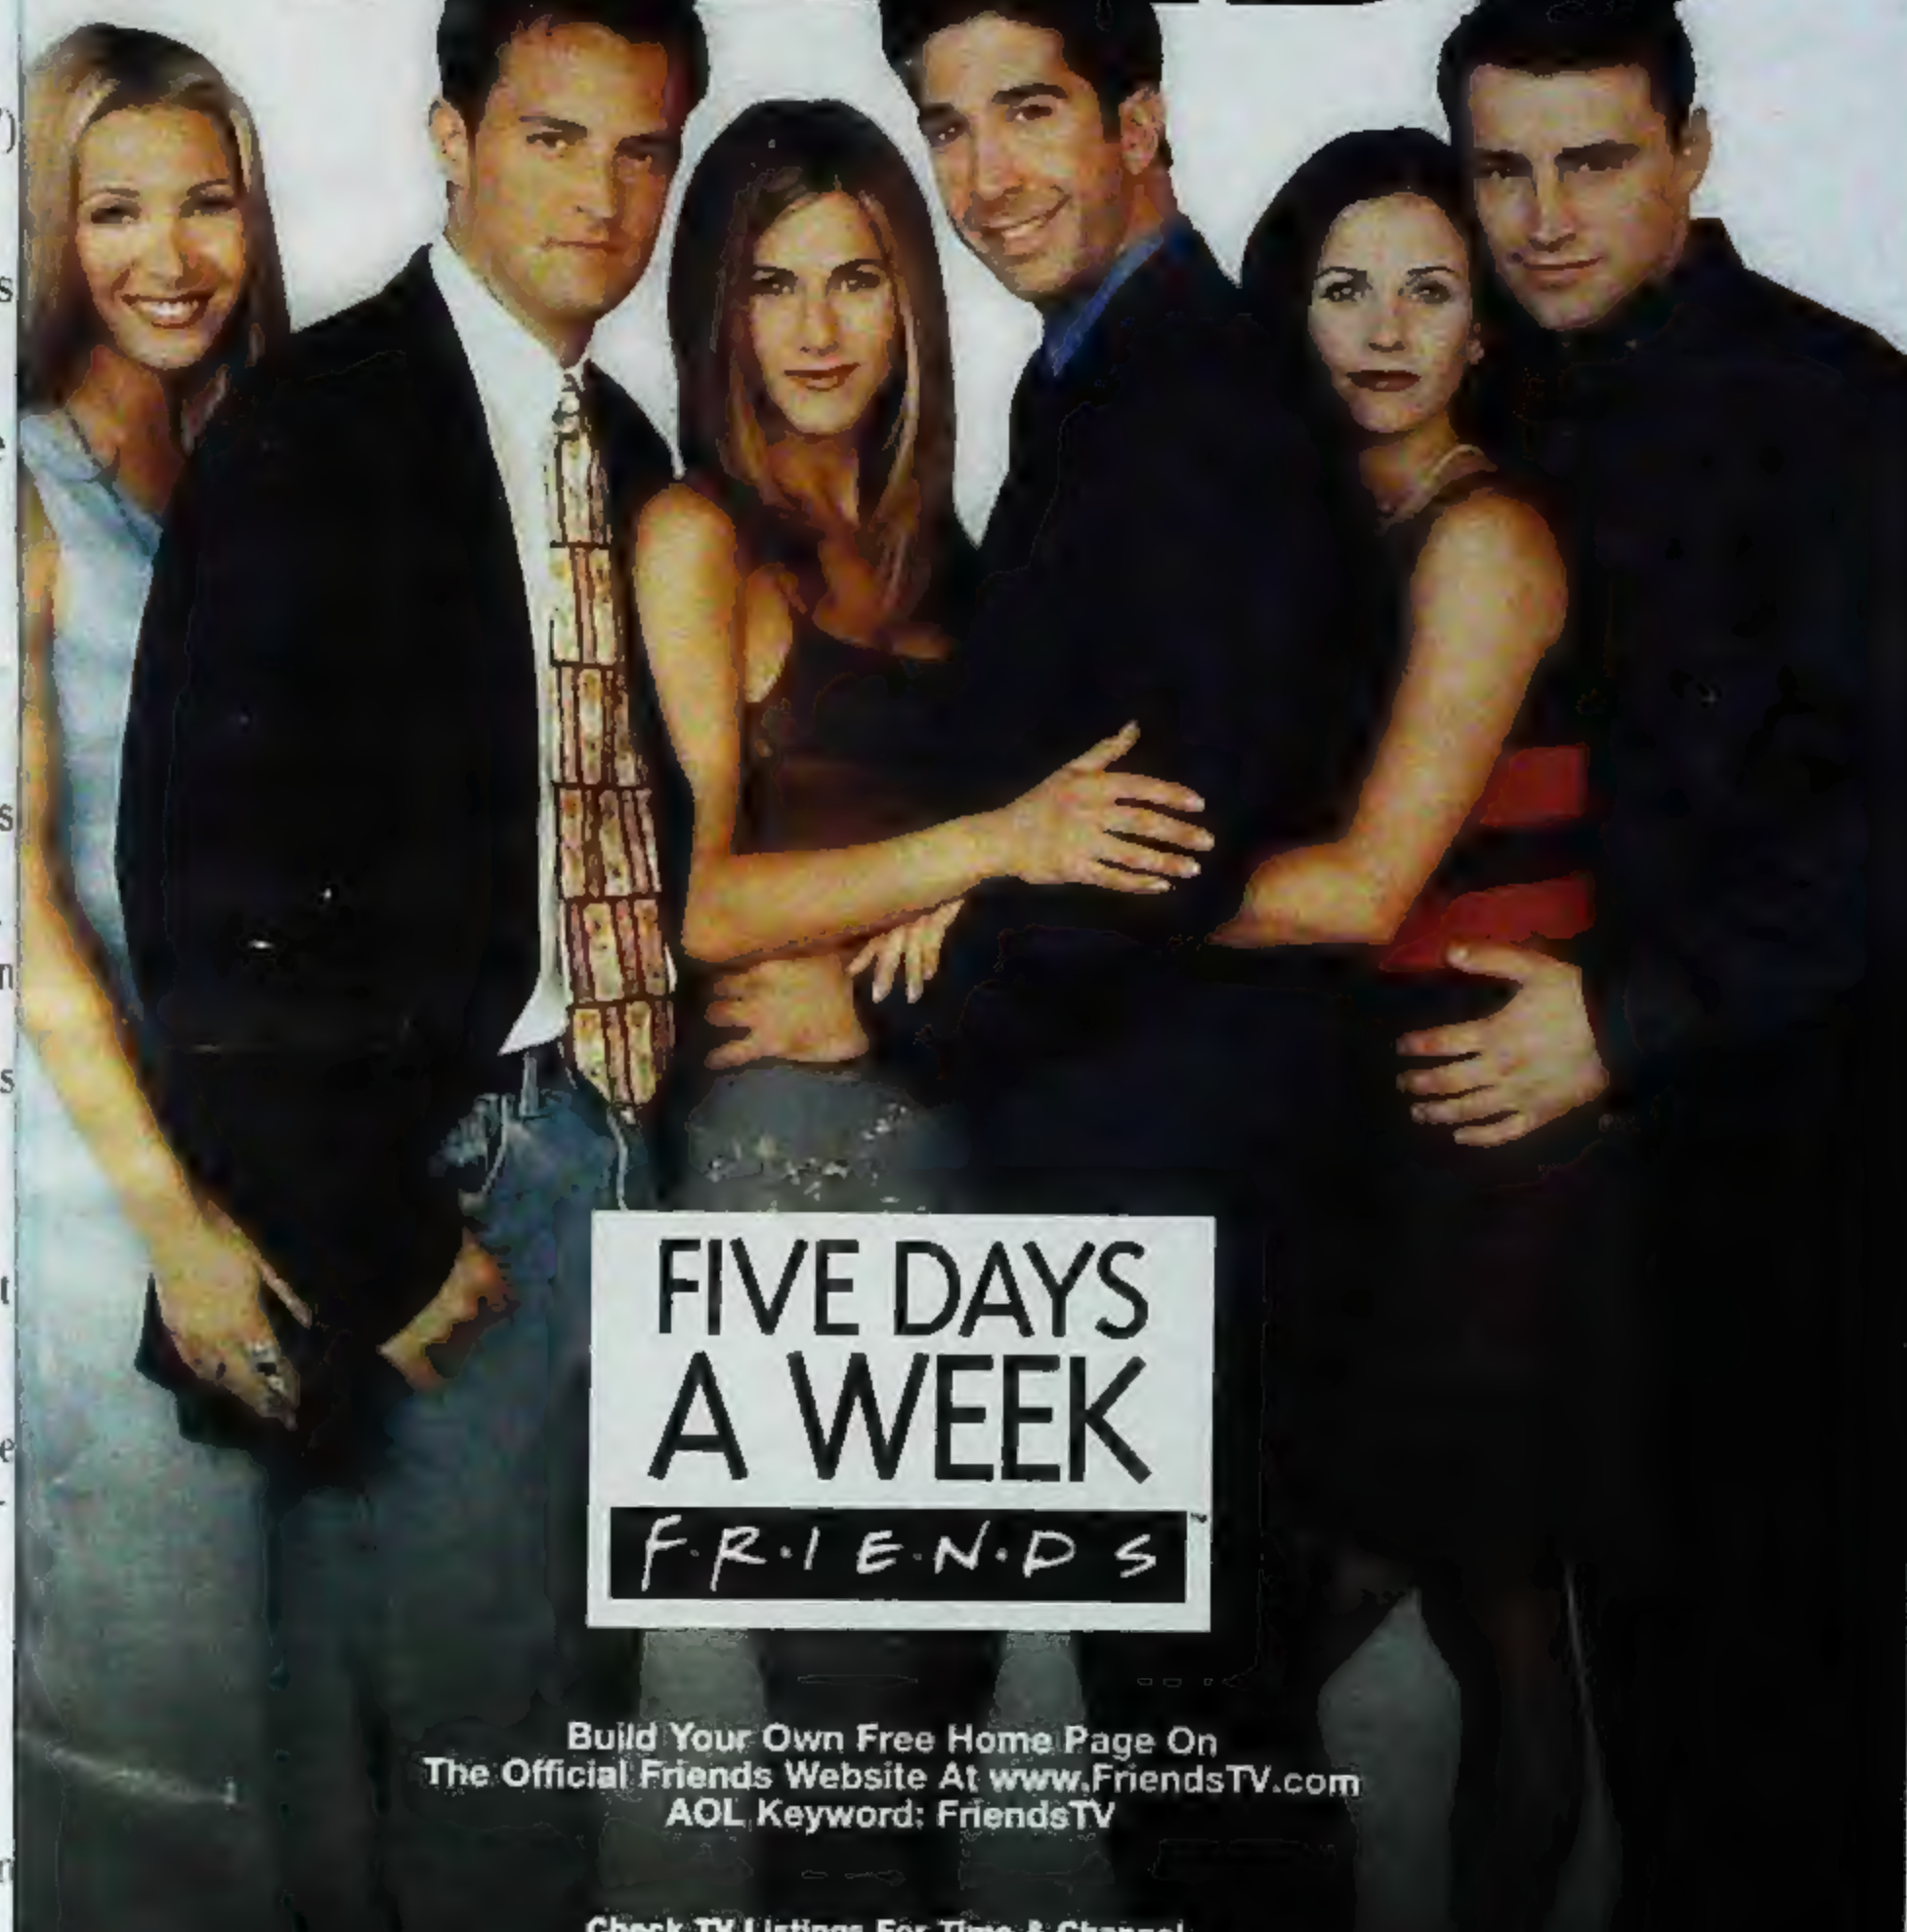

The film is "G.I. Jane," which makes its premium-channel debut Saturday, September 26, on Starz! A buffed-to-the-max Demi Moore stars as the first woman to try to become a Navy SEAL. To make her case bulletproof, she is asked to pass the basic-training program, which the movie tells us has a 60 percent dropout rate for men.

But Moore slogs on in scenes that test her beautifully cut body to the extreme. This film makes much better use of her physicality than did "Striptease," because here her character uses her wits to combat those who want her to fail.

Moore deserved Oscar consideration for this role because so few actresses would have dared to take the part—let alone play it so convincingly.

Come to think of it, Moore's story might have been a better one for Hoffman to cover than Travolta's.

Ally Chat

Calista & Co. on fame, fortune and why some viewers (and critics) shouldn't take Ally McBeal so darn seriously

BY HILARY DE VRIES

During its debut season, Ally McBeal became more than a hit series. The hourlong comedy created by David E. Kelley (The Practice, Picket Fences) was co-opted as a cultural flash point for such issues as contemporary workplace mores, the death of feminism and the revival of the mini-skirt. Overnight, the actors became stars contending with awards (Calista Flockhart won a Golden Globe and received an Emmy nomination), publicists and movie roles, among other Hollywood rites of passage.

Now, as the series heads into its all-important second season with a few notable changes, including a new cast member (Portia de Rossi), a glossy new set and an off-camera move to luxurious new studios, the cast still seems to be rubbing its eyes. During an afternoon photo shoot and interview session, Flockhart and costars Jane Krakowski and Lisa Nicole Carson displayed wildly differing responses to their new status in the Hollywood pecking order. Krakowski, a onetime Broadway dancer, twirled about the photography studio, munching a slice of chocolate banana bread, laughing as she read a magazine story about herself. Flockhart took a different tack: She indulged in a fit of private giggles during the photo session; at the start of the interview, she settled warily into a chair and began tugging the sleeves of her sweater and rocking back and forth. Meanwhile, Carson opted for cool, puffing a dark cheroot and dropping a few well-chosen observations into the conversation.

TV GUIDE: Judging by the large number of publicists at this photo shoot, you've seen a lot of changes in the past year.

Jane Krakowski: I remember the first photo shoot we went to, there was only the cast. At the next one, there were more publicists than cast members; it was scary.

Calista Flockhart: Now all my friends are people I pay.

Krakowski: [laughing] That's so sad.

Flockhart: It's true!

TVG: What's it like to walk down the street these days?

Flockhart: As much as a show like this gives you professional freedom, it really takes away a lot of personal freedom. I used to go out to eat by myself in New York. Now you have to be more careful.

Krakowski: I don't think it's been a bad thing. In New York, everyone's like "Hey, Elaine, you rock!" but in L.A., people are more like, "I really enjoy your work," like they're in the business. But it's different than what Calista gets.

Flockhart: [laughing] I find you can't be rude to people anymore.

Krakowski: Well, you do feel like you're being watched a lot. I'm a bulimic shopper, so I buy a lot of stuff, and then I return some of it. But now I feel like people are thinking, "Do you really need that $45 back?"

Flockhart: When I said you can't be rude, I don't mean randomly rude. But when you get bad service somewhere or if you've just been treated awfully, now you have to suck it up.

Lisa Nicole Carson: [laughing] I don't suck it up.

Flockhart: Well, I'm a bit more timid now.

TVG: How's the second season going? Where did that new swanky apartment for Ally and Renee come from?

Krakowski: When you guys shot that first scene in your new apartment, did they show you unpacking boxes or anything, because you never even mention it?

Carson: [laughing] No, we're just there.

TVG: And what's with the dishy new lawyer, Nelle Porter?

Flockhart: That's Portia de Rossi, and she's great.

Krakowski: I wish she wasn't as blond, thin or talented, but "Welcome, Portia"

The New Nicotrol Inhaler
[nicotine inhalation system]

Now there's a totally new system your doctor can prescribe that can help you control your cravings and quit smoking: the Nicotrol Inhaler (nicotine inhalation system). To use, hold the Nicotrol Inhaler between your fingers and draw on it; you'll get the nicotine your body needs, delivered in a way that can help ease your withdrawal symptoms while you are quitting, without the harmful tars, carbon monoxide, and smoke of a cigarette.

Before using the Nicotrol Inhaler, you must stop smoking. Do not use with other products containing nicotine. The most frequently reported side effects were local irritation in throat and mouth, as reported by 40% of patients on active drug as compared to 18% of patients on placebo, and coughing (32% active vs. 12% placebo). The majority of patients rated these symptoms as mild, decreasing with continued use. Stomach upset may also occur (18% active vs. 9% placebo).

The Nicotrol Inhaler may not be for everyone. If you are pregnant or nursing, or have asthma, you are encouraged to try other methods to quit smoking, like educational or behavior-modification programs first. It's important to tell your doctor if you have a heart or lung disease, or are taking other prescription medicine. Nicotine from any source can be toxic and addictive. Keep this product out of reach of children and pets.

Ask Your Doctor or Call 1-800-INHALER

Please read the important information on the adjacent page and discuss it with your doctor.

Important Information about NICOTROL® Inhaler. Please Read Carefully.

Patient Information about NICOTROL® Inhaler (nicotine inhalation system) 10 mg per cartridge (4 mg delivered). Please read this information before you start using the NICOTROL® Inhaler. Also, read the Patient Information leaflet each time you renew your prescription, just in case anything has changed. This information is not intended to take the place of discussions between you and your doctor. You and your doctor should discuss NICOTROL® Inhaler as part of your plan to stop smoking. Your doctor has prescribed the NICOTROL® Inhaler for your use only. Do not let anyone else use your NICOTROL® Inhaler.

What is the NICOTROL® Inhaler?

NICOTROL® Inhaler is indicated as an aid to smoking cessation. It helps you quit smoking by reducing your urge to smoke. Success in quitting with nicotine replacement therapy (such as the NICOTROL® Inhaler) usually involves behavior change. People who use NICOTROL® Inhaler with a comprehensive behavioral smoking cessation program are more successful in quitting smoking. This program can include support groups, counseling or specific behavior change techniques as well as the NICOTROL® Pathways to Change® self-help materials. Call 1-800-699-5765 if you did not get your free Pathways to Change® handbook from your doctor.

Who should use the NICOTROL® Inhaler?

Patients with these conditions should consult their doctor before using this product:

- heart problems (recent heart attack, irregular heartbeat, severe or worsening heart pain)
- stomach ulcers
- overactive thyroid
- high blood pressure
- allergies ■ drugs
- diabetes requiring insulin
- kidney or liver disease
- wheezing or asthma
- accelerated hypertension

How does the NICOTROL® Inhaler Work?

As you inhale ■ puff through the mouthpiece, nicotine turns into ■ vapor and is absorbed into your mouth and throat.

How should I use the NICOTROL® Inhaler?

Use the NICOTROL® inhaler longer and more often at first to help control cigarette cravings. Less nicotine per puff ■ released when you use the inhaler versus a cigarette. Try different schedules to help control cravings. Puffing on the Inhaler for 5 minutes at a time will give you enough nicotine for 4 uses. Nicotine in cartridges is used up after about 20 minutes of active puffing. In a few days you'll find what works best and know when nicotine in the cartridges is used up. Your doctor may adjust the number of Inhaler cartridges during the first few weeks. As your body adjusts to not smoking, your doctor will either tell you to stop using the Inhaler or slowly reduce the dose.

Do not use more than 16 cartridges each day unless directed to do so by your doctor.

When should I stop smoking?

Stop smoking as soon as you start using the NICOTROL® Inhaler.

How long should I use the NICOTROL® Inhaler?

Do not use the NICOTROL® Inhaler longer than ■ months.

Can I smoke while using the NICOTROL® Inhaler?

Do not smoke or use any other tobacco products, or other products containing nicotine, at any time while using the NICOTROL® Inhaler.

What else do I need to discuss with my doctor?

Tell your doctor about any medicines you are taking — the dosages may need to be changed. Check with your doctor before taking any new medicine while using the NICOTROL® Inhaler.

Are there special concerns for women?

Do not use if you are pregnant (or think you may be pregnant) or nursing unless your doctor tells you to do so. Nicotine in any form can cause harm to your unborn baby. Only you and your doctor can decide if the benefits ■ using the NICOTROL® Inhaler to stop smoking outweigh the risk of using this medicine.

What are the possible side effects of the NICOTROL® Inhaler?

Like all prescription drugs, the NICOTROL® Inhaler may cause side effects. Many people experience mild irritation of the mouth or throat, and cough when they first use the NICOTROL® Inhaler. Stomach upset may occur. In clinical studies, the frequency of cough, mouth or throat irritation declined with continued use of the NICOTROL® Inhaler.

Is there a chance I could become addicted to the NICOTROL® Inhaler?

Nicotine from any source can be toxic and addictive. Dependence might occur from transference of tobacco-related nicotine dependence to the NICOTROL® Inhaler.

Can a nicotine overdose occur with the NICOTROL® Inhaler?

Nicotine overdose can occur if symptoms of overdose occur, call ■ doctor or Poison Control Center immediately. Overdose symptoms include: bad headaches, dizziness, upset stomach, drooling, vomiting, diarrhea, cold sweat, blurred vision, hearing difficulties, mental confusion, weakness and fainting.

How should I store the NICOTROL® Inhaler?

When not in use always store mouthpiece and cartridges in plastic case, out of reach of children and pets. Store cartridges at room temperature, not to exceed 86°F. If you keep cartridges in the car, be careful, interiors heat up quickly. Protect from light. Clean mouthpiece regularly with soap and water.

Keep the NICOTROL® Inhaler out of reach of children and pets. This product is not child-resistant. The NICOTROL® Inhaler can cause serious illness in children and pets — even ■ very small amounts. If a child chews on or swallows NICOTROL® Inhaler cartridges, call a doctor or Poison Control Center. After ■ cartridge is used throw away out of reach of children and pets. Even used cartridges contain enough nicotine to seriously harm children and pets.

The Patient Information leaflet provides a summary of information about the NICOTROL® Inhaler. If you have any questions or concerns about either the NICOTROL® Inhaler or smoking cessation, talk to your doctor. In addition, talk to your pharmacist or other health-care provider.

welcome!" No, one of the things that I like about the show is that we have more women than men.

Flockhart: It's rare to have a woman protagonist and even more rare that David Kelley has written a woman protagonist who isn't perfect. There's a chemistry between the actors but also between David's writing and the actors.

Carson: This may come out wrong, but for me, usually when you first meet the cast, you think you're the only talented one in the group. But now it's like the theater where everyone is talented.

TVG: You all started in theater. Do you feel challenged working in television, playing the same role over and over?

Krakowski: I used to judge how I was doing by the reaction of the audience, and without that I've had to become more disciplined.

Flockhart: I'm completely different. Because TV happens so fast, I've had to learn to think on my feet.

Carson: The challenge of being a supporting player is waiting your turn at bat while others are hitting home runs. At the beginning of last season, I didn't know what was going on with Renee. Fortunately, David started to explore my character, so I was able to actually go work instead of just being on the set.

TVG: Do you worry fans won't distinguish between you and your characters?

Carson: Renee's ■ lot fiercer than I am. She's decisive, and she's really got it together. I need a Renee in my life.

Krakowski: People either love Elaine or they hate her, and Jane the actress had to find ways to justify ■ lot of what Elaine did. But I will say I'm better looking and thinner than Elaine [laughing].

TVG: [to Flockhart] People seem to think of you as Ally. Has that been ■ problem?

Flockhart: I resent that comment. I'm not Ally McBeal, I'm Calista Flockhart.

TVG: I'm not saying I think that, but there seems to be this public perception that you created Ally McBeal.

Flockhart: I understand what you're

Why We're Fond of

Vonda

With a season of Ally McBeal behind her and the show's soundtrack making it to the charts, Vonda Shepard toured the country this summer, and more than once she was interrupted. "Ally McBeal, I love you!" a voice would scream out through the crowd.

"First of all, I'm not her on the show, and second, she's not a real character," says an amused Shepard, 34.

But with her weekly piano ballads, often tied to Ally's own soul searchin', it doesn't take a giant leap to see why fans seem confused. Her latest song, "Maryland," to be released on October 6 by Sony Music, will be played on the October 19 episode. It comes from a time in Shepard's own childhood, growing up in Encino, California, when her mother often would talk of moving to the "simple life" back East. "She just kind of had a vision of living there," Shepard says.

They never moved. (Her parents separated when she was 10.) After a career of ups and downs (she was picked up by Reprise and then dropped in 1992), it looks as if things are turning in her favor. The Ally McBeal soundtrack sold more than 1 million copies, and she has just started working on a new solo album, scheduled for a March release. "People say to me, 'You've made it.' But I've been in the business too long. It can be very fleeting."

saying, but I take offense to that, actually. I am really very different, and she is such a character. This is a woman who falls down, who throws her shoes; she's far from real. We're actresses playing roles, but because the name of the show is Ally McBeal, it's also become a cultural term, and I'm afraid that's all I'll be known for.

Krakowski: It's interesting that people have already lost that perspective with you. Like when Time came out with you on the cover. They had photos of three real women, including Susan B. Anthony, and then they had you.

Flockhart: Susan B. Anthony would roll over in her grave.

TVG: What was your reaction to being held up as the whipping boy, so to speak, for the end of feminism?

Flockhart: It's surreal. I won't say I was horrified, but I was quite depressed. I mean, this is a comedy about an exaggerated character, and to compare her to Susan B. Anthony is outrageous. To say that our generation has no feminists, that all we have is Ally McBeal, is just crap. I know in my circle of friends we're all feminists. It's more subtle—we're not out there burning our bras, and we take going to college for granted—but I battle sexism and oppression and all that. Feminism does exist, and I challenge those who say it doesn't.

TVG: Why do you think the show has become such a hot button for social issues?

Flockhart: There is a group of women who are in their 30s who have chosen careers but who have no husband or children, and time is running out, so even though they said we could have it all, it's not so easy. So now I'm a freak because I'm alone and I don't want to be, but if I say that, the feminists will kill me. It's almost as if there's no answer for it, it's just where we as a culture are.

Carson: We're just girls on a show, that's how I look at it.

Flockhart: I think people make the mistake of assuming that we're saying this is how women act and behave. This is how Ally behaves, not how all women behave. I really think people should stop taking the show so seriously and just enjoy it.

TVG: Speaking of enjoying the show, did any of you go Hollywood? What about personal trainers or—Krakowski: [laughing] Does it look like I have a trainer? Compared to Calista, everyone seems big. It's like that cartoon with two girls in a bar, one Barbie-doll size, and this guy says, "Are you girls models?" And the bigger girl says, "My friend is, but I'm real-sized." That's what it's like standing next to Calista all season. I felt like I had to say, "I'm real-sized."

TVG: You all seem smaller in person.

Krakowski: Oh, say that again!

Carson: Yeah, could you start the article that way? "They were so much smaller in real life." ■

SNL impresario Lorne Michaels catches his breath after a tumultuous year and gets ready for a new one

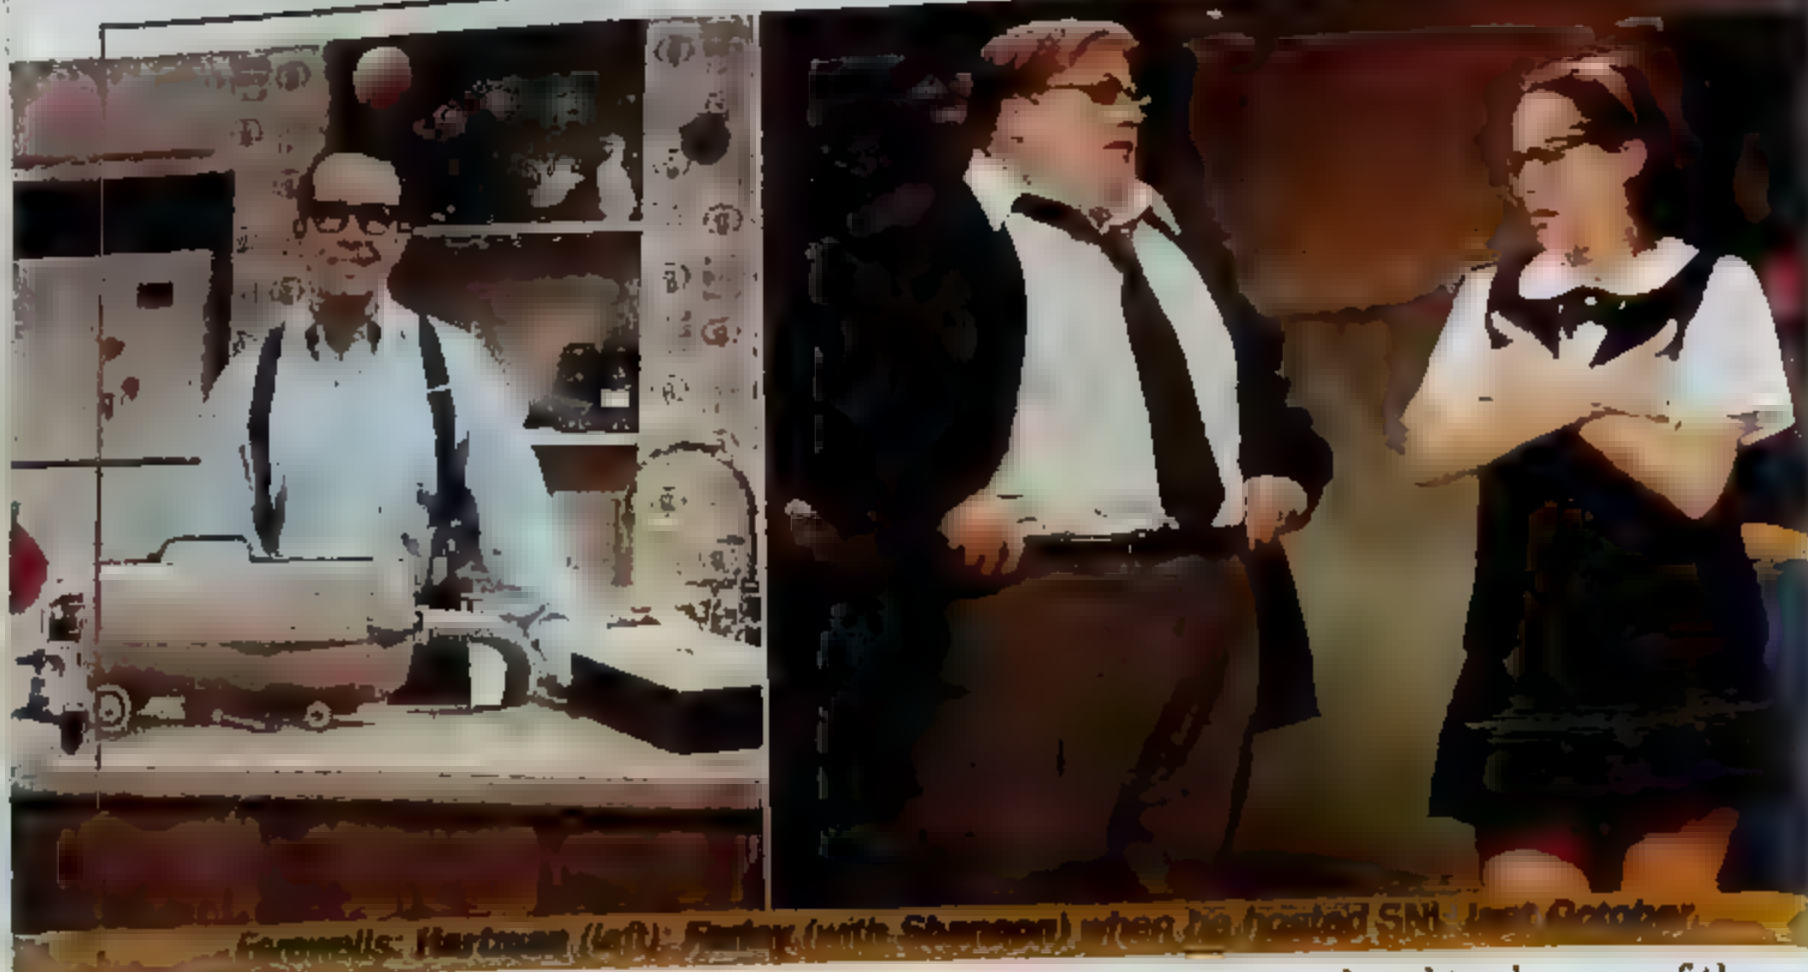

BY ANNABEL VERED

When the Saturday Night Live season is in full swing, Lorne Michaels, the show's creator and executive producer, is so busy he barely has time to eat. Last spring, the 53-year-old Michaels finally sat down for dinner (sushi, served with silverware and paper napkins) and an initial chat in his elegant office at 10:30 on a Friday night. Even then, he was constantly interrupted by the young assistants stationed right outside his door. Phone calls had to be taken. And Michaels kept a watchful eye on two screens that monitored the rehearsals taking place one level below in the famed Studio 8H.

In late summer, life was calmer for

AS SEEN ON "OPRAH"

Michaels, which gave us a chance to catch up by car phone as he rode back to New York City from the Amagansett, Long Island, beach home he shares with his third wife, Alice—one of his former assistants—and their three young children (Henry, 6; Edward, 2½; Sophie, 9 months). As the NBC show begins its 24th season on September 26, with high-profile host Cameron Diaz and musical guests the Smashing Pumpkins, Michaels talked about the highs and lows of the last year, including the birth of his daughter, the deaths of SNL alumni Chris Farley and Phil Hartman, and new competition from Howard Stern.

TV GUIDE: You're gearing up for the new season now. Did you have a chance to chill out this summer?

Lorne Michaels: It wasn't bad, a little hectic. I was in Canada with Molly Shannon and Will Ferrell last week because we're shooting [the film] "Superstar," [based on Shannon's] Mary Katherine character. Earlier this afternoon I was with my son at a birthday party watching them try to break the piñata. So it's a combination of being asked about Howard Stern too much and piñatas.

TVG: What did you think of the Howard Stern Radio Show? It got awful reviews.

LM: It's very, very hard to do one of these shows. When Conan O'Brien started his show, it was just like a firestorm, everybody slammed it; and he was smart, funny, and he figured it out. I think Howard is smart, funny. He'll probably figure it out. TVG: Do you worry about its impact on SNL?

LM: No, I'm not concerned. Anybody who gives people a reason to stay home to watch network television on Saturdays is all right with me.

TVG: How do you plan to compete? What's up for the new season?

LM: We're introducing three new guys, and hopefully we'll have some seeds for something new in the next couple of years. Jimmy Fallon, who is 23, is a year younger than the show, and he does brilliant impressions, people like Adam Sandler—and wasn't Adam just here an hour ago? He does Chris Rock, Jakob Dylan. Chris Parnell is from the Groundlings, and he does brilliant character work. And Horatio Sanz is from Second City. He's got enormous energy. The press made a big deal about him being the first Latino, [but] you know, John Belushi was the first Albanian. The criteria is that they're funny. Gender isn't a criteria. Neither is [race]. We're not a government-funded organization.

FORT DODGE ANIMAL HEALTH

© 1998 Fort Dodge Animal Health

TVG: Cast member Jim Breuer [who played Goat Boy] has left the show amid rumors that you were angry because he was doing an MTV show and shopping around a script based on characters he developed at SNL.

LM: None of that mattered. Jim makes me laugh. It was just that he wasn't getting enough playing time. What was frustrating for me is I would see him do the warm-up, and he would just completely have the audience, and he'd be brilliant, and we weren't seeing that on the show. People either figure out how to make the show work for them or they don't.

TVG: That's a minor controversy compared to last season when you had to fire Norm Macdonald as "Weekend Update" anchor. And, of course, Phil Hartman and Chris Farley died....

LM: Well, my daughter was also born in January. Lots of things have been difficult, and lots of things have been exhilarating, so in that sense it was a little more of a year than normal.

TVG: You attended the funerals of Farley and Hartman. What goes through your mind at those moments?

LM: In both cases you're burying people who you loved and whose lives were cut short. You work together every day for years. Then you don't see each other because they're doing different shows, but you still bump into each other, and you feel you're going to see them again. It's incredibly sad, particularly for Phil, because it was just a tragedy. And with Chris, because he's not here anymore. I know it sounds trite, but he had so much to give, and we're not going to get it now.

TVG: Has it sunk in yet?

LM: It has very definitely sunk in, but it just makes you want to hug your kids, that's all it does.

TVG: Did you know Brynn [Hartman's wife, who shot him]?

LM: Of course. Phil was very dear.

TVG: Did you have any inkling as to the extent of the problems they were having?

LM: No, not a clue.

TVG: When Chris Farley hosted SNL last October, he was reportedly doing drugs. How could you let him do the show in that condition?

LM: The show has a pretty rigid structure and pretty strong boundaries, and I think it was in that kind of structure that Chris thrived. Although he was a mess when he showed up, by the end of the week I thought it was that kind of work that gave purpose to his life. It was incredibly important to him that he be funny. And I thought it would be more life-giving than not. That was my call, and I don't regret it.

TVG: During the time when he was a cast member on SNL, did you suspend him when he was screwed up?

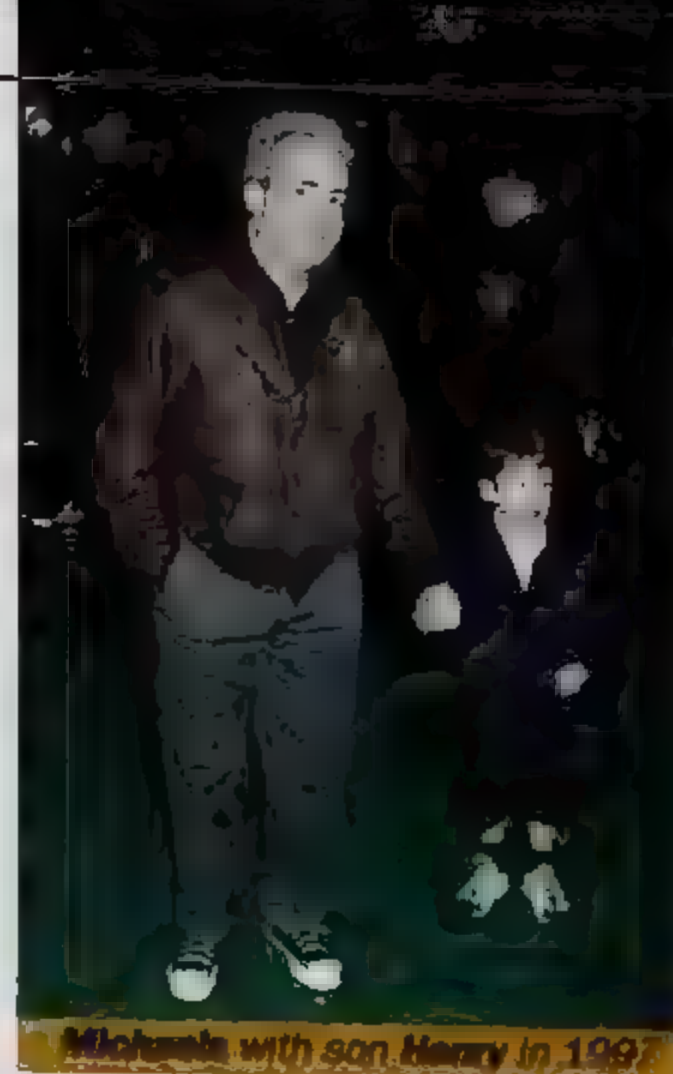

LM: The moment that he was seriously f—ed up, he was suspended and sent to a rehab place in Alabama [in 1991]. It was only when they felt he was ready to perform that he came back.

TVG: Do you agree with the comparisons made to John Belushi?

LM: Well, they both died at 33, they're both incredibly funny, and both got in way over their heads with drugs. I think Chris looked at John and went, "That's what I want to do." I think he even went to bed sometimes with his eyebrows taped up, you know put Scotch tape on his eyebrows to see if they could stay up like Belushi's did. He perhaps romanticized what he thought was John, the way John lived.

TVG: How were they different?

LM: They were funny in different ways. John was physical, but he could do remarkable impressions. He could do very deep character work, and I think that he found much more of his talent.

Michael with son Henry in 1997

Chris, he just didn't get the chance.

TVG: The show has gone through so many ups and downs in the press. Do you still pay attention to the criticism?

LM: Of course, and probably will more in the coming years, because my children are learning how to read. When you're called a genius, you go, "No, I'm sure they're exaggerating." But a little of you is touched. If you give that power, you have to give power to when they say you don't know anything. All you can do is keep showing up.

TVG: How much longer will you keep showing up?

LM: It's hard when something's been your life for this long to not want to be in it 24 hours a day. When I left in 1980, I was sort of surprised the show went on, because almost everybody involved with it left, and it stumbled for a while and then regained its feet. Then [NBC Entertainment president] Brandon Tartikoff called me because they were going to cancel it in 1985, and I found out how much I cared about it. I would like it to continue.

TVG: Are you content?

LM: In terms of my life, yeah, but that's mostly to do with my family. I think it made my life much, much fuller. There were lots of adjustments, but I love my work. Having a family, particularly having it late—it took my life to a new level. I hesitate to say it made me happy because something will happen if I do, but yeah, that makes me very happy.

TVG: Do your kids know what their daddy does?

LM: They have an inkling. They've never seen the show, but I think they know I like to laugh a lot. And that it's good when we laugh a lot. ■

THE COMEBACK KIDS

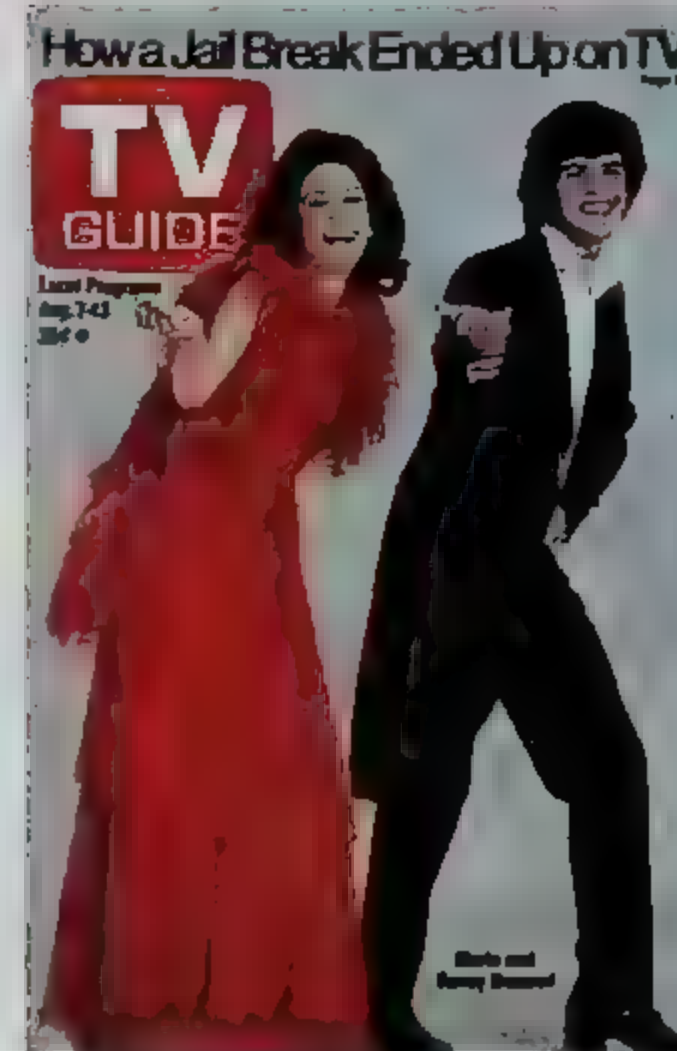

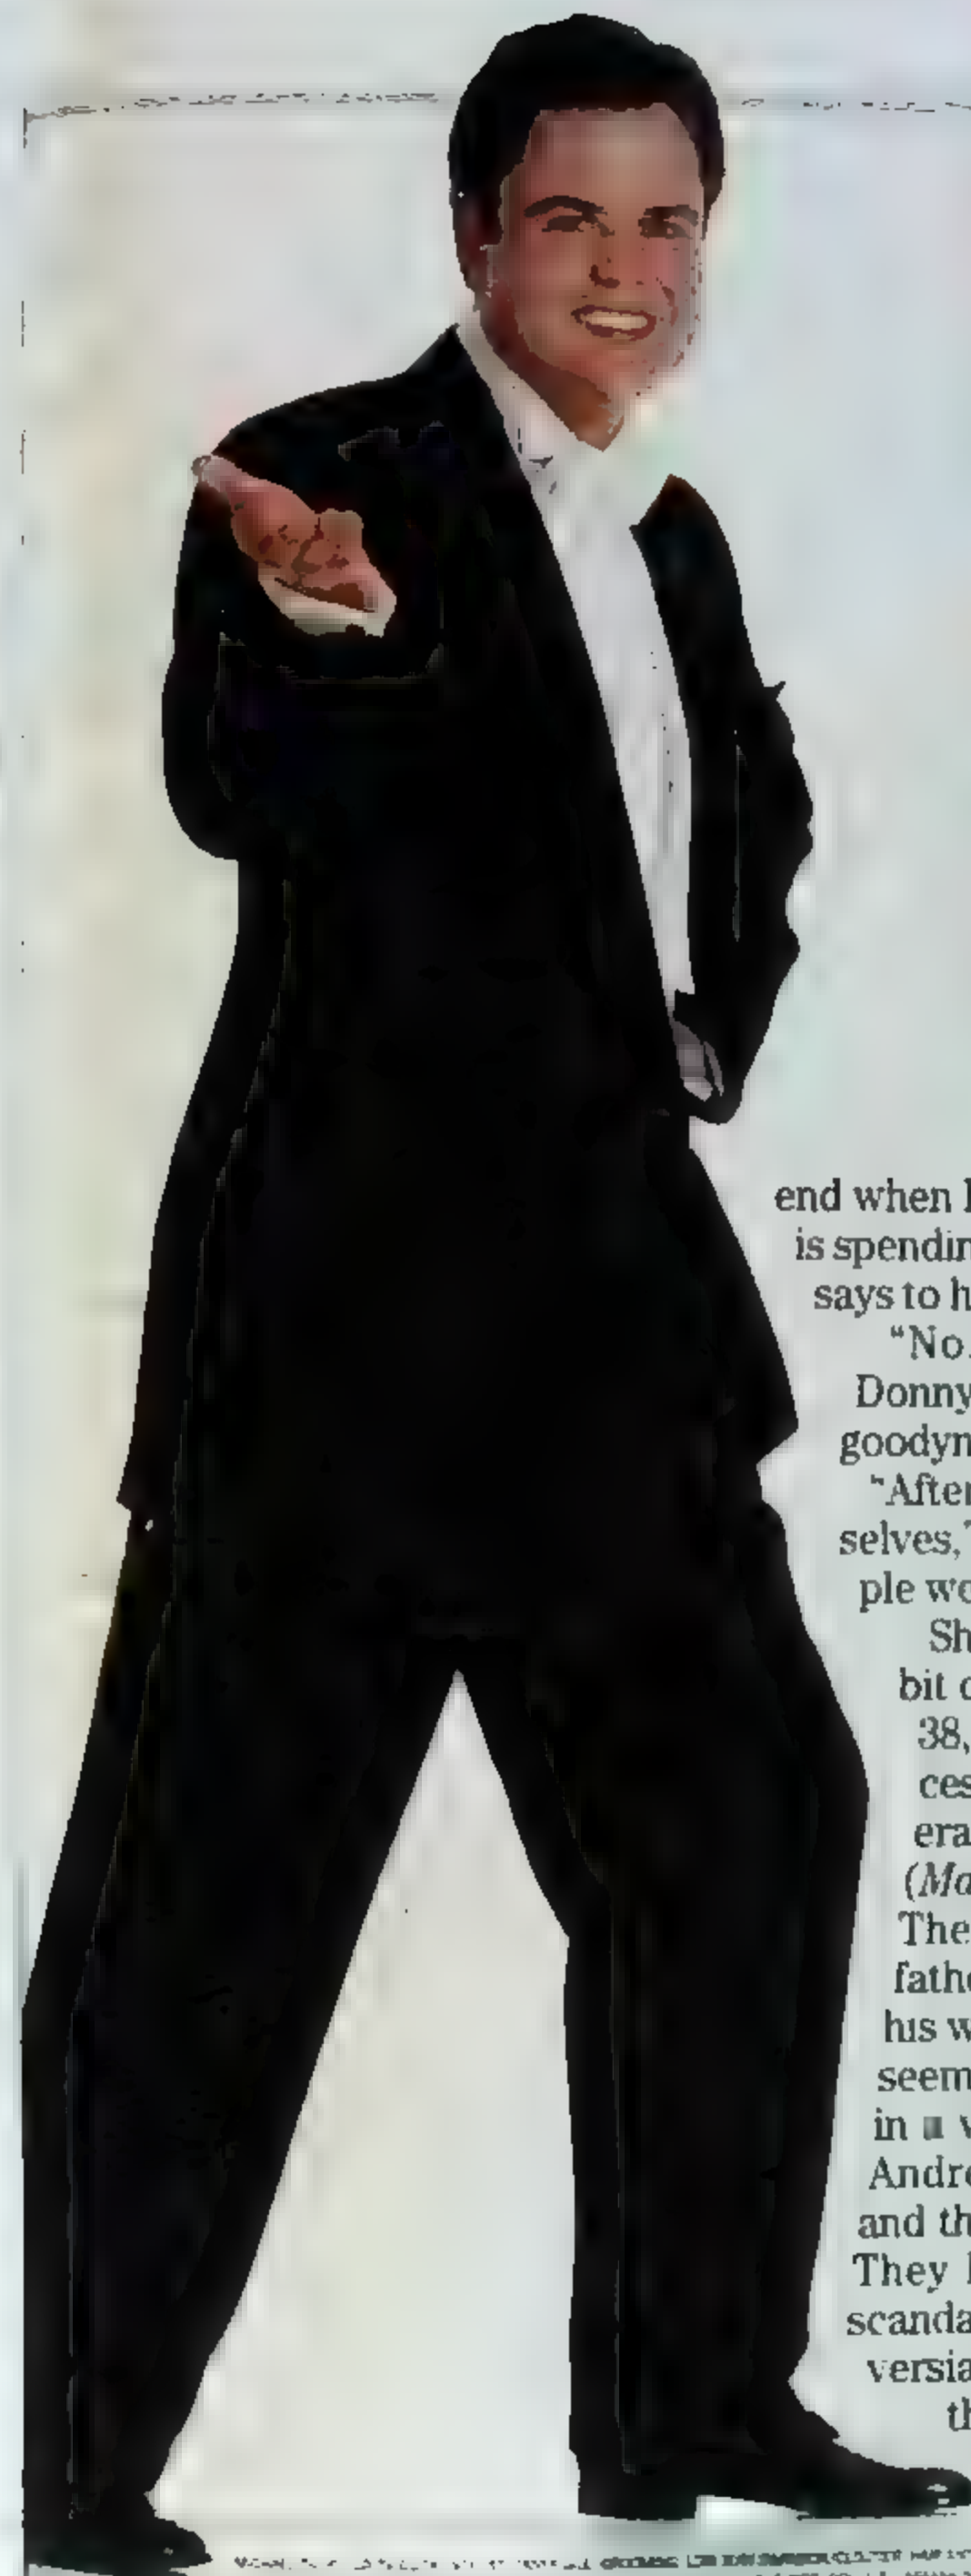

Now she's a little bit chatty, and he's a little bit raucous and droll. Donny and Marie return with a new talk show.

BY JANET WEEKS

Donny and Marie Osmond are sitting side by side in Culver City, California, on a purple velvet couch on the set of their new syndicated daytime talk show. They are laughing—politely, not heartily—at a suggestion that they borrow from Sony's ubiquitous campaign for last spring's monster flick "Godzilla" to advertise The Donny & Marie Show, which is also produced by the studio. The gimmick: Paint an entire bus white, with the slogan THEIR TEETH ARE WHITER THAN THIS BUS.

"Ha ha," they laugh, but they don't think it's funny. After all, it has been almost 22 years since Donny's huge, sparkling smile bore the brunt of endless punch lines, most of them perpetrated by the writers of Donny and Marie, the pair's homey late-'70s musical variety show.

The labored laughs come to an end when Donny's 19-year-old son, Don Jr., who is spending the day hanging out with his father, says to his dad, "Your teeth aren't white."

"No. They're quite yellow now," says Donny. "You can take it too far, the goody-goodyness."

"After 20 years, we have to laugh at ourselves," adds Marie. "Are we the same people we were 20 years ago? No."

She's a little bit...older. And he's a little bit older, too. The giggling country girl is 38, a mother of six, the creator of a successful line of collectible dolls and a veteran of both Broadway and a TV sitcom (Maybe This Time, which aired on ABC). The gleaming rock & roll boy is 40, a father of five (he still lives in Utah with his wife, Debbie, and their children) and a seemingly tireless showman who starred in a whopping 1,800 performances of the Andrew Lloyd Webber musical "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." They have traveled the world, survived scandal (Marie's divorce, extremely controversial in their Mormon faith), thrilled at the highs of careers on overdrive and endured the lows of careers stuck in neutral. Says Donny. "What people don't know and what they'll see is that Donny and Marie are very real. We've had life experiences. Now, granted, we may not have been in the ditches like a lot of people who had drug problems or were fired from jobs. But when I quit the old Donny and Marie show, that was the toughest time in my life. I couldn't even get arrested." Adds Marie: "We've been through a lot of stuff. We had to prove we could sing, prove we could get a record deal, prove everything we've done. We had to learn to work hard."

Million-watt smiles of way back when (clockwise from top): Golden All-Star Book from 1977; Donny & Marie Colorforms Dress-Up Set from 1977; the August 1976 issue of Tiger Beat magazine

And now the two are hoping that hard work will pay off as they face another challenge, launching a TV talk show in the already crowded and cutthroat daytime talk market, a landscape littered with famous faces who tried and failed to dominate. The high failure rate leaves Marie a little bit nervous. "I hope people don't expect it to be bang perfect out of the box," she says. "It's impossible."

But if Donny and Marie are seriously worried about the competition, they aren't showing it. "We have our own style," says Marie, who, it turns out, smiles much more than her brother. "My philosophy: There's room for everybody. And hopefully, we'll play it a little different."

"Not hopefully," says Donny, interrupting. "Definitely. Rosie is great at what she does. Oprah, Jerry. But we're going to be different." For starters, the two say, they will be the only brother-and-sister team on TV, and they'll sit in connected chairs. Their chemistry together—a typically teasing sibling relationship—will lend the show a different vibe. "We can go places others could never with a co-host," says Marie. "I know him so well. And we love to have a good time."

One factor that could work in the duo's favor in the ratings game: America's out-of-control appetite for '70s nostalgia. Viewers who fondly remember the old show may tune in to the new one just to relive those bygone days when the Osmonds represented a rock-solid oasis of morality in a society awash in sex, drugs and disco. At a time when platformed, polyestered teens were boogying to KC and the Sunshine Band's "Get Down Tonight" and "Love Machine" by the Miracles, Donny and Marie were hosting a show that regularly featured ice skating, Sid and Marty Krofft puppets and Donny's purple socks.

"I can see why the image is so strong about us being goody-goody," he says. "I remember one time we were singing [Three Dog Night's] 'Joy to the World' and the line was, 'We always drank h-u-m-wine. He always had some mighty fine-wine.' And we sang, 'We always drank h-u-milk.' It was a joke on us, but it solidified our image."

The wholesome image was boon and bane. After the show ended in 1979, Donny's career foundered, as record industry executives were reluctant to sign a rock star who was less a rebel than a poster boy for clean living. In frustration, Donny tried an image makeover—his smile went into hiding—and changed his name to Don. "That was a suggestion by Michael Jackson and Quincy Jones," says Donny. "They went so far as to say I should change my name completely—last name, too. They thought I should come out like an unknown singer. I got to the point where I wasn't exactly desperate, but there were tough times. It wasn't like being a brand-new artist. It was worse because I had to start over below ground zero because I had baggage."

Marie suffered a low point of a different sort: In 1982, she married former Brigham Young University basketball star Stephen Craig. Some 4,000 guests attended the well-publicized reception. Two short years later, they divorced, and Marie retained custody of son Stephen, now 14. (She is now married to record producer Brian Bosil, and they live in Los Angeles.)

"I know what it's like to have to do that dating crap again," says Marie. "I know what it's like to be alone and dealing with the financial pressure. It's a very difficult thing a lot of women go through. And I can totally relate to it. I changed a lot as a person when I went through that. It's why I am who I am."

And although America may be nostalgic for the good old days, Donny and Marie are not. They are hoping to appeal to younger viewers who don't remember the old show at all. "I did a show in Atlantic City at Christmas at Caesars, and a little girl brought one of my dolls to have me sign it," says Marie. "And she goes, 'Man, I didn't know you could sing!'"

Donny says kids, if they know him at all, know only that he was the singing voice of Shang in Disney's animated feature "Mulan." "I did 'Joseph' in Chicago, and there was this little kid who came up, and just before he got to me he told his dad, 'I'm so excited about this guy. He's going to be big someday.' They're oblivious to our previous careers."

That's one reason the new show won't borrow much from the old one, says Marilyn Wilson, who is executive producer along with longtime Osmond family friend Dick Clark. "The one thing we are not doing is recycling the old Donny and Marie."

Will Donny and Marie sing on the new show? "I think we should," says Donny flatly. Marie is less sure: "There has to be a reason for it. If a guest comes on and wants to do something with us, hey, we'll do something with them."

Will there be an opening

Marie performing with her kids (from left) Brandon, Stephen, Jessica, Rachael and Michael Donny had a playroom built near the stage—Marie's youngest, Brianna, is 10 months; his, Joshua, is 9 months—and stocked it with Chutes and Ladders, Lincoln Logs and a crib. When a crew member gave them a bag of homegrown tomatoes, they received it as if it were a gift basket from Neiman Marcus.

monologue? "I think it would be just death for us to compete as comedians," says Donny.

Who will be the guests? That is perhaps the toughest question. Talk shows vie not only for ratings but for celebrity guests. And Donny & Marie will be up against new shows hosted by Roseanne, Mother Love and Howie Mandel. Wilson admits the competition is formidable and declined to name celebrities booked to appear. But she thinks having the right hosts is more important. "When you're a start-up show, it's always going to be tough," she says. "That's why we truly believe the show has to rise or fall on its own... I'm not concerned about the guests at all. It's really about Donny and Marie." She adds that the show won't be "all lightness and fluff. It'll be much edgier than that."

It's an interesting thought: edgy Osmonds. They may not be the same smiling kids they were in the '70s, but on the surface, they remain pretty darn sweet. Marie made Rice Krispies treats for the crew on the first day of work on the new show. Her office—far from the typical chrome-and-glass Hollywood star lair—is decorated with her Marie Osmond Fine Porcelain Collector Dolls (sold on QVC and at Disney theme parks) and an enormous wreath made of dried flowers from bouquets given her by her husband. She and Yet a recent tabloid report claims the two have fought behind the scenes. Wilson denies it, but the pair's 35-year-old brother, Jimmy, who owns the Osmond Family Theater in Branson, Missouri, suspects the story is true. "I'm sure they did fight," he says. "As a family, we will always be tight. But c'mon. We're real people. We snap at each other. Marie's not going to take anything from Donny. And he's very picky and hard on himself. They're interesting, cool, fascinating, self-made people. And if viewers give them a shot, I think they'll be surprised at how different they've become over the last 20 years." ■

No more patients for Dr. Quinn—and no more patience from fans

BY RICH SANDS

The Doctor is out. Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman, the Jane Seymour series with a staunchly loyal, older, predominantly female audience, was canceled by CBS last May after six seasons because of declining ratings (a 9.4 percent drop last year). After CBS decided to target a younger, male demographic, the network was bombarded with a campaign by loyal Quinn fans this summer. Thousands of letters, faxes, phone calls and e-mails poured into the network, and more than $11,000 was raised to advertise the Save Quinn campaign. Alas, the prognosis isn't good: Aside from the possibility of the occasional Quinn TV-movie, a series revival is about as likely as another weekly show for the Walton clan. "The cold, cruel reality of the business we're in is that advertisers don't pay for letters, and they don't pay for the intangible emotional attachment that people may have to a show," says Kelly Kahl, CBS senior vice president for program planning and scheduling. On the eve of a September 28 rally at CBS's Los Angeles headquarters, TV GUIDE caught up with some of the Quinn folk to hear what they had to say about the controversy, the cancellation and life without their favorite doctor.

Laura Dickey

Home: Mobile, Alabama

Age: 30, "so I fall in that coveted demographic, and unlike what CBS would have you believe, I'm not some old woman in the sticks of Iowa watching Dr. Quinn."

Occupation: Military officer

Family: Single

Why she likes the show: "Intelligent scripts, great acting, terrific ensemble cast. It kept me interested. It kept me staying home on a Saturday night to watch television."

On why the fans are so upset: "We made Saturday night a hit for CBS when Saturday night at 8 was considered the graveyard slot. We create their 'America's Night of Television,' and they unceremoniously dump us at the last minute with no chance for a finale, which is not fair to the cast and crew."

Kris Voelker

Age: 34
Occupation: Multimedia designer for the Cleveland Clinic Foundation hospital
Family: Single
On the likelihood of CBS bringing back the show:

"I'm wondering if there's a little bit of pride, that [CBS Television president Leslie Moonves] has made his decision and he's not going to change his mind."

On the rally: "Our goal in this is [for this to] be the last hurrah. We've faxed, we've e-mailed, we've sent over 100,000 letters. We've gotten petitions. We have spent over $11,000 on ads, and CBS is still not paying attention. So I think the point of this is to get physical bodies out there that represent the general public and to let [CBS] know that we are serious, and we are tired of having it dictated to us what we're going to watch on television. The point of the rally is to make it real, visible, live and public."

On CBS: "If you go out and ask the normal population, 'What product does CBS offer?,' most would say programming and entertainment, and they would see themselves as the consumer. But if you go to CBS and ask them what product they sell, they'll basically tell you it's the audience they sell and the consumer is Madison Avenue. Every single decision that has been made by CBS for Dr. Quinn has been for the benefit of Madison Avenue with no regard whatsoever for the 12 million loyal viewers. It's mind-boggling to even suspect that they would turn us away. Having your audience stray too far from home is not good business."

On the campaign: "Unlike other save-our-show campaigns, we have had no funds from anyone closely associated with the show. This has truly been a grassroots campaign. Donations have come from individuals all over the world who like Dr. Quinn and value family programming on network television."

Roger Fulton

Why he likes Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman: "If I had to pick just one thing, it is my enjoyment of the show with my family. I can't think of any other show where all four of us would sit down and be totally engaged during the whole show. And after the show was over, often we would sit down and discuss some of the issues that were raised."

On the show's demographics: CBS "is looking for a certain dollar revenue in advertising because the media buyers have dictated that some folks are worth more money than other folks, and that's what I take offense to."

THE MOST POWERFUL PEOPLE IN HOLLYWOOD

...you're looking at them. In the wake of Dawson's Creek, teenage girls are steering the course of entertainment. BY TED JOHNSON

The cast and crew of Dawson's Creek returned to the relative isolation of Wilmington, North Carolina, last month to begin shooting a new season, but it was clear that a radical shift had occurred after just 13 episodes on the WB.

Late one evening, executive producer Paul Stupin came back from a break to find about 100 people milling about. "I thought, 'What are all the extras doing outside?'" he says. "But I soon realized these weren't extras, these were fans. They had gotten wind we were there."

Not surprisingly, most were teen girls and young women, anxious to catch sight of the stars: James Van Der Beek (Dawson), Katie Holmes (Joey), Joshua Jackson (Pacey) and Michelle Williams (Jen).

In fact, these four owe their new fame

Girl Talk

They are young women—hear them roar in a no-holds-barred conversation about TV

What do those demographic darlings, teenage girls, really think about television? To find out, TV GUIDE's Beth Arky sat down with a cross-section of teens—Tanica (Nica) Winslow, 15; Jennifer Weston, 15; Nikki Cha, 14; Elizabeth Chick, 14; and Sara Bissell, 14, all from Denver—and covered everything from Dawson's Creek to The Jerry Springer Show. Here's what we learned.

TV Guide: So the new TV season has arrived. Are there any shows you're looking forward to seeing?

Nica: I want to see what's up with Felicity; I can't wait for that one to start. Charmed seems like it'd be cool; I like movies like that, like "The Craft."

Nikki: I was reading about Charmed and Felicity, and I've seen the commercials, so I'm looking forward to both those shows. I watch Sabrina, so I like the idea of three sisters who are witches, doing magic.

TVG: Would you pick Charmed over Party of Five? They're scheduled opposite each other on Wednesday night.

Nikki: I'll watch two TVs at the same time! Really, I'll watch one show and tape the other show for later.

Nica: I think I'd watch an episode of Charmed first and see how I like it.

TVG: So what was your favorite show last season?

Jennifer: I like Dawson's Creek. The problems they have, that they have to figure out on the show, are like the things that we go through. Like how Joey [Katie Holmes] had a big crush on Dawson [James Van Der Beek], but Dawson didn't see it; or he knew, but he went for the popular Jen [Michelle Williams], who I don't like. She's just kind of snotty. She thinks she's too good for everybody.

Nica: Mine would have to be 7th Heaven. I like the way they deal with issues that really are thrown in kids' faces nowadays. So it teaches you morals.

Nikki: Mine's 7th Heaven, too. The problems are what real kids face. If a person's going through those kinds of troubles, 7th Heaven shows you how to solve the problem. It really helps.

Elizabeth: I really don't have a favorite show. I like sitcoms like Sister, Sister. And I love Jay Leno. I think he's just so funny. Bill Clinton and Monica [Lewinsky] and Michael Jackson are his favorite people to pick on. I've watched Dawson's Creek a couple of times with my friend; she has to watch it every week. But I don't think it's something I'd watch every day.

TVG: Who's your favorite guy on TV?

Nica: Dawson.

Jennifer: Dawson. He's hot.

Nikki: Dawson.

Elizabeth: Dawson is different from all the other guys, and he's cute.

Nica: He reminds me of guys our age. He's kind of moody. One minute he's interested, and then he's not. But I like him. He's really cute, too.

TVG: Do any of you know who Kevin Williamson is?

Nica: What movie is he in?

TVG: He's the guy behind Dawson's Creek, "Scream" and "Scream 2."

Nica: I don't watch the credits on any show. I turn it off right after it's over.

TVG: What about commercials? If you see an ad for a movie, do you want to see the movie?

Sara: Sometimes. I went to see "The Truman Show" because of the ad.

Jennifer: It depends. They ran a bunch of them for "Disturbing Behavior" with Joey [Holmes] from Dawson's Creek and I went to see that.

TVG: So how much of an influence do you think the ads have on what you buy?

Elizabeth: I think it's more the people around you. If you see a lot of people wearing, say, bell-bottoms, after a while you want to buy them.

Jennifer: And if you want to be in this one little group at school, you'll do whatever it takes: buy the same kind of clothes as them, act the same way, that they'll accept you.

TVG: Do you watch the controversial cartoon series South Park?

Nica: I don't think my mom knows that I watch it, but she usually doesn't have a problem with what I watch. As long as I don't start talking like them. Besides, it's a cartoon.

Jennifer: I love that show. I'll tape it if I'm not here. My mom has watched; it's not something she likes. She doesn't think they have a good message to send, but I like it, so she lets me watch.

Sara: It isn't appealing to me at all. I don't like stuff like that.

TVG: Are there shows your parents won't let you watch? Or do they set limits on how much you can watch?

Nikki: They're cool; it doesn't matter to them. The only time we don't watch it is when we're doing our chores.

Sara: Not what I watch but how much I watch. I have to get my homework done, so that only leaves about an hour or so a night for TV, if that.

Elizabeth: I can watch TV if I get my homework done. But I don't get home from sports and clubs till 5:30, and then it's dinner and homework, so I don't have much free time for TV.

TVG: Are you OK with that?

Elizabeth: It's fine. But it's kind of weird because I go to school and everyone's talking about what was on last night. And I'm like, "Yeah? Uh huh."

TVG: Do you usually end up watching TV alone or with your family?

Sara: I watch Touched by an Angel with my mom. It shows what happens in life a lot of times, and I like the spiritual part.

TVG: Do your parents pay any attention to the rating system?

Nica: No.

Jennifer: They only put [the rating] in the top corner at the beginning of the TV show for, like, two seconds.

Elizabeth: My parents have blocked out all of the R-rated movies. If I want to watch it, they can unblock it. They usually will [if I ask]; they just want to know what I'm watching.

TVG: What do you think about Jerry Springer?

Nica: More Jerry Springer!

Jennifer: Everybody at school is obsessed with that show.

TVG: You know they tried dropping the fights but brought them back.

Jennifer: They were trying to prove it wasn't fake, and every show doesn't involve fighting. It really doesn't matter if they're fighting or not; it's still funny.

Elizabeth: Yeah. I don't think it's a good show, but it's funny because the things they fight about are stupid.

TVG: Is there anything you would like to see on TV that has never been done?

Nica: How about an all-guy show, all the time? Works for me.

to the young teenage girl. She represents a pivotal demographic in today's Hollywood, the driving force that put Dawson's Creek on the map, saw "Titanic" again and again and will likely make it the top-selling video ever, and is making the movie stars of tomorrow.

Just look at all the angst and rites of passage coming to TV this fall. In the wake of the popular Dawson's and Buffy the Vampire Slayer, the WB is launching the college saga Felicity; Charmed, about three sisters who are witches; and the small-town soap Hyperion Bay. Meanwhile, UPN, home of Clueless and Moesha, has the "Legends of the Fall"—like saga Legacy; and Fox has already drawn in teens with That '70s Show. In one of the season's boldest scheduling moves, the WB has pitted Dawson's against Fox's aging teen juggernaut, Beverly Hills, 90210, on Wednesdays.

In this new world order, Felicity's Keri Russell is a star even before the show's September 29 debut—she already has several web sites—and Moesha and Sabrina are role models. "There is an undercurrent of girl power going on, and it has been welling up for a while," says Steve Miner, who's directed Dawson's Creek and this summer's "Halloween: H20," starring Dawson's Williams.

Teen girls are enjoying unprecedented wooing by networks looking to tap into this increasingly savvy audience. As Felicity costar Scott Foley notes, Love triangle No. 1: Dawson's Williams (left), Van Der Beek and Holmes made a splash.

"The shows today are smarter. I don't think kids laugh at the dumb principal anymore."

This doesn't mean the networks have given up on the 18-49 demographic, still the most coveted among advertisers. (You won't see Frasier getting a sassy, long-lost niece.) And household hits like Seinfeld and Home Improvement scored well last season among both boys and girls. Even executives at the WB recognize their youthful base is too narrow an audience to command strong overall ad rates; they point out that a large chunk of their target goes up to the ripe old age of 34.

In some ways, nothing is new. Teen girls have always been among the most rabid TV fans, the ones who create the word of mouth, who have plastered their walls with posters of Ricky Nelson, David Cassidy or Luke Perry (who returns to 90210 this season). But that kind of buzz is all the more crucial in today's cluttered TV universe.

More important, when it comes to buying power, the teen generation has never been stronger. According to Nielsen Media Research, the 12-17 demographic is growing faster than the 18-49 segment, while the marketing firm Teenage Research Unlimited says this younger group's spending has been growing steadily, up to $122 billion last year from $103 billion in 1996. A study by Channel One, the news show that beams into high schools, reveals even more telling results. With many parents working, teen girls aren't just buying magazines and CDs; they're making more of the household shopping choices, from soft drinks to Lean Cuisine. The same study concludes that teens influence $20 of every $100 a family spends at the grocery store.

"You always had shows aimed at the younger audiences," says Michael Wood, Teenage Research's director of syndicated research. "But you didn't have companies with this age group at the top of their agenda." Todd Cunningham, vice president of research and planning for MTV, concurs: "Marketers have realized the sheer number of products the 13-year-old girl has before her health and beauty aids, electronics. They have moved from dolls to life staples."

Namely, it's the three-year-old WB that has found its niche among teen girls. With shows like Dawson's, Buffy and 7th Heaven, it's akin to an FM radio station aiming to "keep narrowly targeted and to be extremely important to that one group," explains Garth Ancier, president of programming. In the span of a year, the WB leapfrogged Fox and ABC to become the No. 1 network among teens. (In fact, it was the only network to experience audience growth—20 percent—last season.) Marketing has played a key role. This year, the WB distributed 2 million book covers to schools across the country featuring the casts of Dawson's, Buffy, Felicity and Charmed. The network even convinced Madonna to allow her new single, "Power of Goodbye," to be used in promotional spots and movie trailers for Felicity.

It's the same kind of heavy hype that paid off for Dawson's Creek. Yes, it dwells in TV's graveyard in terms of total viewers: No. 121 out of 156 shows last season. But because of the young, highly affluent, hard-to-reach demographic it draws, industry estimates put a 30-second spot during Daw- son's October 7 premiere at up to $350,000. By comparison, NBC's Law & Order (No. 24 in the ratings last year) may have commanded an estimated $195,000 for a similar spot when it debuted September 23.

It is the studios, eager to lure teens into theaters for films like "Disturbing Behavior" and "Urban Legend," that are driving ad rates higher. It is no coincidence that these features star Dawson's Holmes and Jackson, respectively. In fact, Dawson's fab four have lined up enough projects to take them well into next year, if not into

WHERE THE Boys ARE

Twice as many teen girls watch the WB's Dawson's Creek as boys. Look at King of the Hill on Fox, and the stats are nearly reversed.

When it comes to TV, there's a gender gap. "Girls are interested in relationships," says Audrey Steele, director of TV research at Zenith Media Services, an ad-buying agency. "Gross-out humor appeals to men."

Case in point: Comedy Central's South Park, which is a hit among hard-to-reach teen boys. It commands ad rates of about $75,000 for a 30-second spot, a huge amount for a show that gets just a sliver of overall network viewership.

According to analysts, both teen boys and girls spend about the same amount of money (although the girls are more likely to shop for household goods), and both are just as willing to sample new networks.

Nevertheless, the coming year will see a new wave of animated programming aimed at teen boys and young adults. The WB signed Simpsons producers Josh Weinstein and Bill Oakley to create The Downtowners, about twentysomething roommates sharing a loft. For midseason, Fox has Family Guy, featuring an infant out to kill his mother, and The PJs, a comedy being produced and voiced by Eddie Murphy. Both are expected to premiere in the prime post-Super Bowl slot.

In the meantime, just plain gross works: Fox got an unexpected bounce this summer with Guinness World Records: Primetime, featuring a man covered in bees and doctors removing a huge tumor. A hefty 14 percent of its 12.5 million average weekly viewers were teens, the majority of them males. Asked to explain the gap, executive producer Eric Schotz poses his own question: "Why do boys stare at spiders and girls scream at them?" —T.J.

2000. Among them: "Dick," in which Williams plays one of two teens who crack the Watergate cover-up. As Mark Gill, president of Miramax/L.A., the studio behind "Scream," explains, "Everybody you hit when you buy on Dawson's Creek is a potential customer."

But staying ahead of the curve is more difficult than casting a bunch of good-looking high schoolers. Fox, for example, seemed to have all the elements to grab "Scream" fans with Hollyweird, signing on Shaun Cassidy (American Gothic) and Wes Craven ("Scream") as creators. But executives found the end result disjointed and pulled the show from the fall schedule.

Then there's the risk of going too teen. Last year, ABC added You Wish and Teen Angel to their TGIF lineup of Sabrina, the Teenage Witch and Boy Meets World; both were popular with teen girls but turned off everyone else.

"We were so focused on [the girls], we forgot for a little while just about doing really good shows a family can watch," says Carolyn Ginsburg Carlson, ABC's

senior vice president of comedy series. She says the new Two of a Kind, starring the Olsen twins, and Brother's Keeper will accomplish that goal. With Legacy, UPN is also strategizing to find those families. "What we are hoping for is to appeal female teens out of the gate and their support will expand to other demographics," says Entertainment ment president Tom Nunan.

Another potential pitfall is forgetting girls' desire to be older than they are. Felicity executive producer J.J. Abrams (who wrote "Armageddon") says he expects his show to attract "people who have not been to college yet. They may say, 'Oh, my God, this is what my life could be.' But the last thing we want to do is write down to them."

One final rule: While teens may talk like adults (see Dawson's Creek), they can't really be adults, à la Happy Days. "Our kids are kids, damn it," says Mar

Brazill, executive producer of That '70s Show. "We were going to try to do a show about growing a mustache, but I don't think anyone can."

What is uncertain is how long the youth quake will last. David Poltrack, CBS's executive vice president for research and planning, sees an end in sight. "Advertisers buy the hype. [Dawson's] is called a hit, but shows with five times the audience are getting canceled. At some point, as it flattens out in the ratings, more rational thinking will prevail."

But for now, the trend is already spawning a next generation. Earlier this year, the WB announced a Buffy spin-off for next season starring David Boreanaz as the vampire Angel, and Fox has announced a deal for Jennifer Love Hewitt ("I Know What You Did Last Summer") to star in a Party of Five offshoot. For the foreseeable future, teen girls rule.

KIDS GO PUBLIC!

For many parents, the children's lineup on PBS affords safe haven as an often edifying place to anchor one's tyke for a while and get things done around the home. With a redesign that is heavy on learning activities—adding slightly more grown-up material than its earlier incarnation—the PBS Kids! site

(www.pbs.org/kids) hopes to take visitors a baby step or so further. "When we launched in April 1997, we anticipated a lot of preschoolers coming to the site," says PBS Kids! producer Katrice Jones. But their audience, she says, mainly comprised 8- to 14-year-olds. So PBS Online beefed up the Fun & Games and Babble On sections of its Kids! site to reflect this group's favorite online pastimes: playing and chatting. Our favorite feature?

The Ah Ha! section, where kids not only can post jokes but audio recordings of their funniest laughs, too.

ROGER & ME & US

I'm unsure of this column's clout, but if it can help debunk a notion that has been repeatedly presented to the nation as an indisputable fact, I'll give it a shot.

In 1961, while Roger Maris was hitting 61 home runs, Yankee fans did not hold him in contempt. On the contrary: He was, after all, a Yankee and one who hit home runs. But throughout this season, as Mark McGwire and Sammy Sosa sustained their assaults on Maris's single-season home-run record, the combined forces of the media, especially TV, have painted New York 37 years ago as having been sweepingly intolerant of Maris.

On September 6, Fox aired the game that saw McGwire hit No. 60. Within that telecast, play-by-play man Joe Buck, born in 1969, compared the warmth with which McGwire has been embraced by St. Louis with what Maris experienced in New York. The difference, Buck told a national audience, was that "everyone was rooting against Roger Maris."

Later in the same telecast, color analyst Tim McCarver noted that Maris's family had changed its surname from Maras, adding that Maris probably wished he had changed his name when he played in New York (McCarver himself played in 22 games for the Cards in 1961, none in Yankee Stadium.) After McGwire hit No. 61 two days later, ESPN commentators

Cheers, not jeers: Maris in 1961

Jon Miller and Joe Morgan advanced the same notion as fact: Yankee fans had mistreated Maris.

As a native New Yorker, I am not inclined toward blind defense of my city. We can be a hostile bunch. But Maris was not a target. The issue being so badly confused is that in 1961, Maris was cheered less lustily than Mickey Mantle. It stood to reason: Mantle, in the same home-run hunt as Maris, had been a Yankee hero far longer. That simply made Maris the second-most cheered Yankee, not an object of derision. That a few fans and sportswriters weren't wild about Maris (whatever their reasons) and that he was uneasy in the public glare that came with chasing Babe Ruth's record did not establish an anti-Maris mandate.

I was going on 10 years old in the fall of '61 and was a huge Yankee fan. I listened to or watched nearly every game and attended at least five. My memories of that season remain vivid. More important, I was an impressionable kid. Had Maris been booed or jeered by even a small percentage of the crowd, I would have been startled and would have demanded an explanation from an adult.

We were wild for Maris. The kids in my neighborhood clamored for every product that bore his name. I've asked older Yankee fans if they recall Maris being booed. They don't. In the latter half of this homer-hysterical season, they've read about it and heard about Yankee fans rooting against Maris, but they can't remember it actually happening. And for good reason: It never did.

Zen master: AMC's Gesner

SINBAD THE SOAPSTER

Zen Gesner, who joined All My Children September 23 as Braden (a mysterious sexpot with no last name), shed no tears when his syndicated series The Adventures of Sinbad was axed last March due to the sudden pull-out of its primary investor. "It was a blessing in disguise," insists Gesner. "Playing Sinbad was a blast. I rode horses and swung swords in a fantasy world for two years. But between the South Africa locations and the 16-hour days, I rarely saw my new son, Finn, for the first six months of his life. The AMC schedule allows me to be a real husband and father." (His wife is lawyer Cindy Farrelly, whose naughty-boy brothers, Peter and Bobby, are the creators of the hit film "There's Something About Mary.") On October 1, Gesner appears on Friends as the first guy to date Rachel after the cliff-hanger wedding of her ex-beau Ross. So how's it go? "Let's put it this way: By the end of the episode, my character is sent back to the dating pool. Ross is still in the picture."

"THE GIFT" THAT KEEPS ON GIVING

An encounter with an unforgettable fan has sent Tanya Boyd's career in yet another new direction. The flamboyant performer, who once sang backup for Anita Baker and Natalie Cole and now stars as psychic Celeste Perrault on Days of Our Lives, has cowritten, directed and produced "The Gift," a short film inspired by a blind student she met while making an appearance at a Georgia school for the physically challenged. "This young man," recalls Boyd, "had the chance to regain his sight through new laser technology but turned it down because, in his words, he thought his world was a better place than ours. That saddened my heart, not for him but for what it said about our society." Boyd expanded on this theme, making the protagonist of her film—played by General Hospital's Tyler Christopher—a successful blind sculptor who fears he'll lose his artistry if he gains his sight (Days' Lauren Koslow plays his doctor). Boyd, who is submitting "The Gift" to Robert Redford's Sundance Film Festival this fall, hopes to raise funding to make a full-length version. But no matter what happens, she is determined to continue making films. Even at the expense of her acting? "I'll go wherever God and the wind blow me," says Boyd. "Life is always right, no matter how it turns out."

MYSTERY GIRL

The profile of the TV detective has undergone a profound change. No longer are you looking at some jut-jawed Travis McGee-like mesomorph who unwinds listening to big band music. Nowadays your typical small-screen gunshoe is likely to weigh less than 100 pounds, hate gym class and moon over the Backstreet Boys. This transformation began with the lamentably short-lived revival of Nancy Drew, gathered steam with Shelby Woo and the Olsen twins' videos and achieves critical mass with the plucky protagonist of The Adventures of Shirley Holmes on the Fox Family Channel (Saturday, 10:30 A.M./ET).

The simple but sublime premise is that Shirley (Meredith Henderson) is the 12-year-old great-grandniece of Sherlock Holmes. (Actually, in her primary outfit—a prim private-academy uniform—she looks more like an NBC studio page.) Shirley's widowed father is a British diplomat posted in Canada. (The series is shot in Manitoba. Back when Nickelodeon was in the Fox Family Channel's early stage of development, it also relied on Canadian kids' series to fill its schedule.)

Shirley is very adept and methodical when it comes to gathering clues at a crime scene. She also shares with her legendary forebear highly developed senses of observation and deduction. She can study a new student for a few seconds and declare: "You've never been to a private school before, you live on the south side, you work cleaning fish, and you're color blind." By Jove, the girl is a marvel!

For the most part, Shirley's caseload isn't too far removed from the type of mystery you might see on Scooby-Doo. But she sure takes this stuff seriously. In fact, when her brow furrows in thought, she's the most intense-looking TV detective since William Conrad played Nero Wolfe. OK, so Shirley needs to do some remedial work on developing a sense of humor. But this dogged, resourceful and whip-smart young lady is still a sturdy and intriguing role model.

THE WEEK'S BEST BETS FOR KIDS

Hang Time (Saturday, NBC, 10:30 A.M./ET) NBA star Mitch Richmond of the Washington Wizards puts in a guest appearance on this series about an Indiana high school basketball squad. The episode introduces new team member Hammer (Mark Famiglietti), who has no problems scoring and crashing the boards but has some difficulty scoring on his college boards.

Wimzie's House (PBS, check TV GUIDE listings) The puppet preschool gang kicks off its second season with a lesson on dealing with peer pressure. That pressure comes from Wimzie's friends, who simply can't understand why she would rather be studying tai chi with Yaya than romping around playing Mighty Monster Power Piggies with them.

THE ROBINS REPORT

BY J. MAX ROBINS

Television Goes to War, 1940s-Style

With the big-screen success of "Saving Private Ryan," TV programmers mine WWII for material

The huge success of Steven Spielberg's "Saving Private Ryan" is turning prime-time television into a battlefield of competing World War II programs. Three network projects about the Big One are in development, more than a dozen documentaries will air in coming months and ABC recently paid a staggering $30 million for broadcast rights to the Spielberg film.

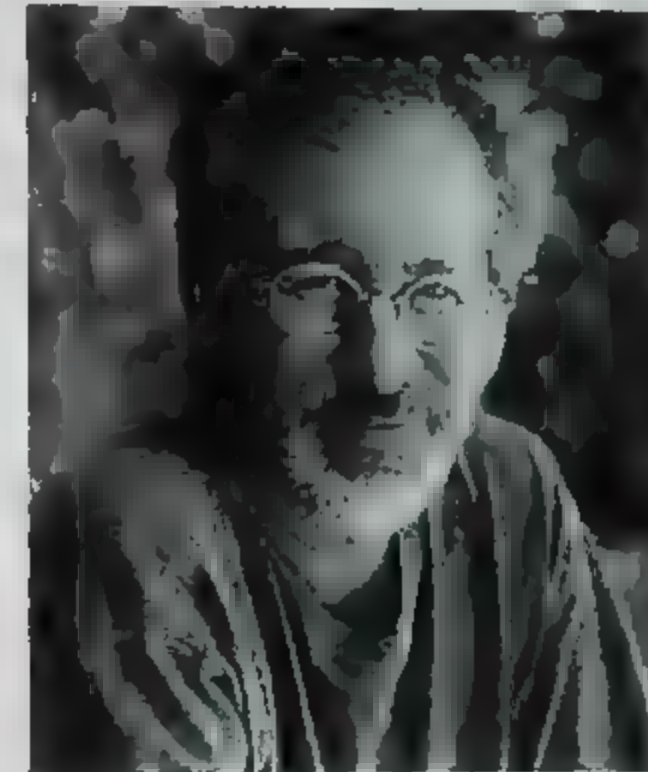

"Before ['Ryan'], we'd shy away from anything World War II," says a TV-studio president. "War dramas are expensive, and it's been so long since one worked. I mean, how many years has it been since The Rat Patrol?"

Now it seems every studio in Hollywood has either pitched or is planning to pitch a World War II project. ABC, for example, is developing a World War II drama created by Roland Joffe, the director of "The Mission" and "The Killing Fields," that could debut next fall. "Roland had this idea for a World War II series kicking around for some time," says Gail Berman, president of Regency Television, the studio where Joffe is developing the project. "But until the success of 'Private Ryan,' we didn't think it was something the networks would go for."

CBS is developing a World War II drama set in the South Pacific, according to sources at the network. And DreamWorks SKG, the studio that coproduced

"Private Ryan" and is partly owned by Spielberg, has been pitching a TV-movie or miniseries based on Stephen Ambrose's bestselling history book Citizen Soldiers, a key source of material for "Saving Private Ryan." DreamWorks has put out feelers to CBS, ABC, NBC and HBO, with the possibility, according to Ambrose, that Tom Hanks will have a producing or directing role. (A spokesman for Hanks says the actor is not attached to the project.) DreamWorks has such faith in the television possibilities for Citizen Soldiers that it paid $250,000 for the rights and will pony up another $1 million if the project proceeds.

But isn't World War II rather unlikely subject matter for networks obsessed with young-adult audiences? Not at all, says Berman, who points out that the war is full of stories about that very age group. "These are coming-of-age stories," says Berman.

PBS and cable have stepped up plans to reach viewers, young and old, with World War II fare. While war documentaries have long been a staple of public television and such cable channels as A&E, the History Channel and the Discovery Channel, the topic has taken on even greater appeal recently. In July, PBS slated repeats of two editions of The American Experience, "Battle of the Bulge" and "D-Day." In addition, the two-part documentary WW II Battleforce aired during PBS's important August pledge period. "That programming outperformed our prime-time average," says

John Wilson, the vice president of programming services at PBS.

In the coming months, PBS will air several other World War II documentaries as well as a three-part series entitled America in the 40s. Editions of The American Experience will include a biography of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and an episode about women who signed up to fly for the U.S. military during WWII.

"There's no doubt that 'Saving Private Ryan' has increased people's interest in World War II subject matter," says Tom Caliendo, the director of programming for the Discovery Channel, which plans a December airing of a documentary called Secret D-Day, and has other WWII projects in the pipeline. Caliendo declined to elaborate on any of them.

A&E has been pitched a project about the famous five Sullivan brothers who died together in World War II. A&E's sister network, the History Channel, also got a boost from Spielberg's "Saving Private Ryan" when a special on the film delivered an audience 40 percent higher than the channel's average, according to Abbe Raven, the senior vice president of programming. The History Channel aired a number of World War II-related shows in August, and all bested the network's average ratings.

Not surprisingly, the History Channel hasn't seen the end of World War II. A documentary about the war in Italy, Up the Deadly Boot, that ran last February will be re-aired by the network in December.

CBS PUTS STOCK IN REPORT

On August 27, when the Dow Jones Industrials took a historic 357-point tumble, Wall Street blamed it on the political turmoil in Russia, at least partially. Indeed, the day seemed to get darker when, in a CBS News Special Report that morning from Moscow, correspondent Richard Threlkeld gave the impression that Russian President Boris Yeltsin would probably resign within the week. Citing unnamed Kremlin and Yeltsin family sources, Threlkeld said Yeltsin had signed an undated order resigning from office that would take effect when his candidate for prime minister, Victor Chernomyrdin, was confirmed by the Russian Parliament. Yeltsin, according to the CBS report, would then resign, and Chernomyrdin would become acting president until elections could be held sometime within the following three months.

Using CBS News as the source, the Associated Press distributed the story to news outlets around the world. But the next day, Yeltsin appeared on Russian television, denying any intention of resigning. A week later he was still in office, and there were no signs of imminent elections.

Threlkeld's report did include the caveat that Yeltsin's resignation was not final and that the president could change his mind.

Still, given that the report included no response from Yeltsin and relied on unnamed sources, should CBS News have run such a volatile report during a time of stock market upheaval? The day after the broadcast, even the New York Times had downgraded the supposed resignation to a "rumor."

Speaking from Moscow, Threlkeld stands behind his story "I regret having not put into the report that we had tried to get a response from Yeltsin's office. But the story was true," says Threlkeld. "We had the information from two independent sources, and later two more sources came forth to confirm it."

"Boris Yeltsin is hardly the first politician to deny something that later turns out to be true," Threlkeld adds. "If our story caused the stock market to fall, I'm sorry, but let the stocks fall where they may."

SUSAN STEWART'S HITS & MISSES

Brief Reviews of This Week's Notable Programs

CROWN AND COUNTRY (Sun., PBS)

There'll always be an England, but it won't always be as titillating as it has of late. This history special, hosted by Prince Edward, describes not the land of Fergie and Di but the England of Plantagenets and Tudors. Crown is quaintly amusing as Edward, a capable if unexciting tour guide, visits splendors from Windsor to Portsmouth and tells stories about royal beheadings (two), pregnant nuns and country weekends where guests competed to see who could gain the most weight. One might conclude that history is simply gossip that happened a long time ago. My score (0-10): 6

FOREVER LOVE (Sun., CBS)  Sporting the strongest twang since Minnie Pearl, Reba McEntire overpowers this TV-movie—and not in a good way. The country singer plays a woman waking up from a 20-year coma to find her world has changed (duh!). You're meant to root for Reba, although it's clear that her husband (Tim Matheson) would be better off with Reba's best friend (Bess Armstrong). It's especially clear when McEntire and Matheson warble a duet. She can sing; he can't. But he can act, so maybe it evens out. My score: 1

SPIN CITY (Tues., ABC)  If this wonderful sitcom has a flaw, it's the fact that its male leads (Michael J. Fox and Barry Bostwick) are so appealing, the females get lost in their shadows. They just sit around, cracking wise and sporting considerable cleavage for municipal employees. But this episode gives at least one of them something to do: Nikki (Connie Britton) falls in love with Mike, who's making a fool of himself over Sports Illustrated cover girl Heidi Klum, playing herself. Expect a few scatological jokes in the spirit of "There's Something About Mary" and many belly laughs. My score: 8

FUTURESPORT (Thurs., ABC)  If this TV-movie is any indication, the year 2025 will bring a bleak landscape, dumb dialogue and citizens of unparalleled good looks. Dean Cain and Vanessa L. Williams star as a famous athlete and a TV reporter intent on saving the world by winning at Future-sport, a nasty game combining hockey, hoverboarding and gang warfare. Executive producer Wesley Snipes appears from time to time with a Jamaican accent and dreadlocks. I can't predict the future, but I foresaw every twist in Sport's stale plot. My score: 3

Wesley Snipes in Futuresport

MYSTERY! (Thurs., PBS)  In yet another variation on the convention of the unconventional British cop, Robson Green stars as an iconoclastic detective in "Touching Evil." This five-week series opens with a richly detailed serial-killer story. Ian McDiarmid is a genteel elderly scientist who is abducting small boys—or is he? "Evil" embellishes its familiar formula with surprising little scenes, like the one in which an ancient German hausfrau in a bathrobe steps over cat dung in her hermetically sealed garage. Don't ask. Just watch. My score: 8

Sammy Sosa's Slam-sational Season

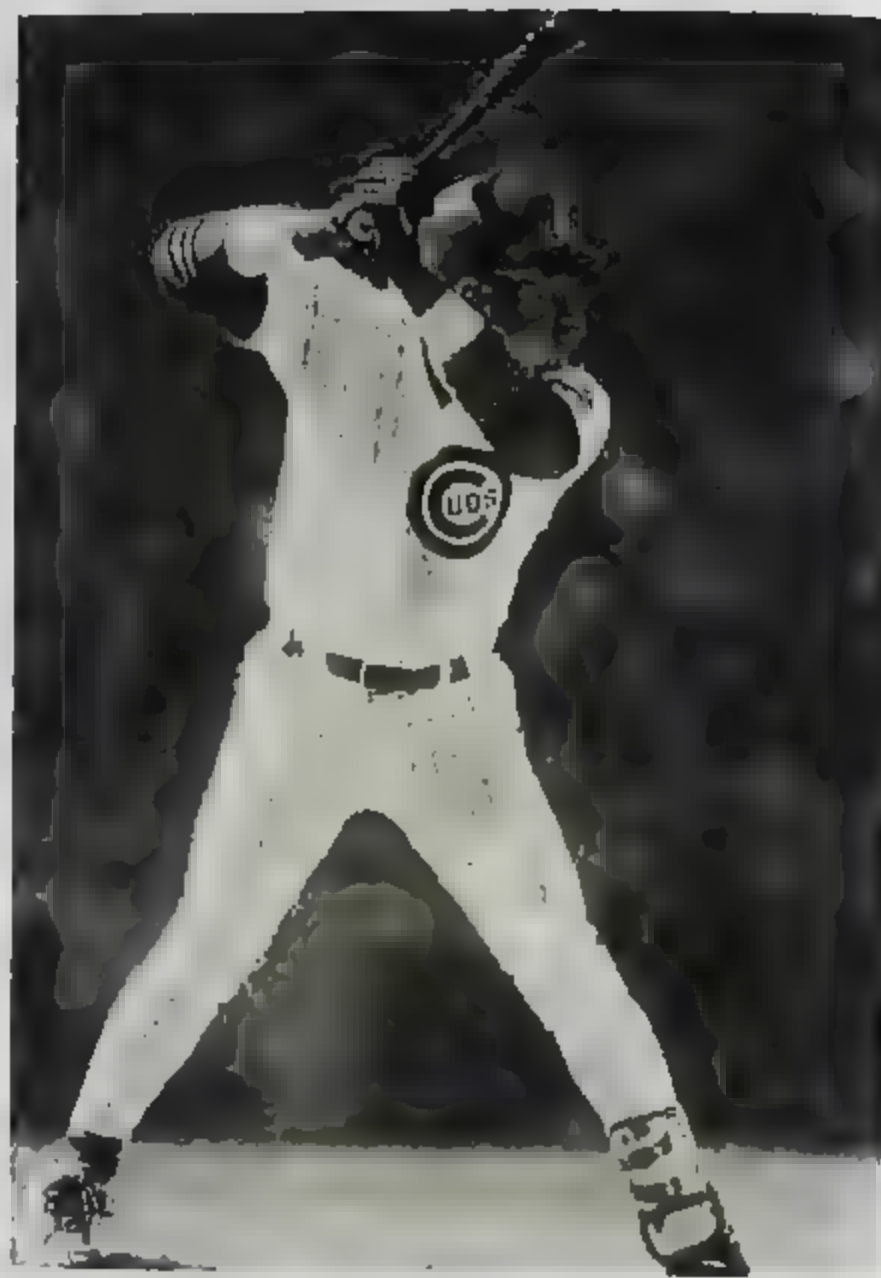

This year the Cubs' slugger has ascended to greatness, taking his team and his fans on a thrilling ride

Sammy Sosa, superstar. It always sounded right, and it was clear from the time Sosa joined the Cubs' roster in 1992 he had the tools to become an exceptional player. But that's a little like having the tools to be a master carpenter. Until you learn how to use them, you're not going to build a beautiful home. While Sosa put up tremendous individual numbers, he didn't help his team win.

That changed this year. He has become a much better situational hitter. He's patient at the plate. He's driving in big runs. He has performed almost flawlessly in the outfield. He's hitting the cutoff man. He's playing the game the way it's supposed to be played. With the Cubs battling for a play-off spot, Sosa has personified what superstar means.

"When he enters a ballpark, there's a threat that you'll run out of mustard, because he's such a hot dog," a writer once said about Sosa. He has always played the game with flair, and until this year, he has taken heat for it. People have less tolerance for showboating when their team isn't winning. Ken Griffey Jr.? Barry Bonds? It's almost OK for those guys to preen because they've won or at least played for something significant.

This year, Sosa has silenced his critics, in large part because of the admirable way he has conducted himself in this home-run race with Mark McGwire. Sosa understands what this chase means to baseball, what it means to his country, the Dominican Republic, and the U.S., his adopted country. Sosa has grown up, on and off the field.

In years past, a lot of Cubs weren't really sure about Sosa's leadership ability. He had great numbers, but he didn't seem willing to make the sacrifices to help his team to victory. Skeptics on his own club wondered whether he was ever going to be a team player. Now they've seen that Sosa is indeed playing as part of the team and not just for himself. His incredible pursuit of the all-time home-run record has not been put before what the team could accomplish as a unit. The Cubs want him to set the record, and they want to make the play-offs.

Sammy has brought new respect to the perennially maligned Cubs. Last season, they won 68 ball games. This year, the team should win more than 90. The Cubs' front office went out and spent a lot of money to bring in new guys like pitcher Rod Beck and shortstop Jeff Blauser, players who have been on winning ball clubs, players who understand what it's like to fight for each and every game through the last few weeks of the season. That spirit has rubbed off not only on the younger players but on some of the veterans who haven't won here before.

It has relieved some of the Sisyphean frustration of being a Cubs fan. The franchise hasn't been to the World Series since '45 and hasn't won one since 1908. The fans have been patient and supportive through a miserable century and are, without a doubt, some of the most loyal in all of sports.

The players themselves are quite conscious of that long losing legacy. Before the season started, Blauser told me: "We may not be here—this group of guys that [general manager] Ed Lynch has assembled—when this team begins to win, and win consistently. But every single one of us takes pride in the fact that we were a part of helping to turn this franchise around."

And the city is reacting. Granted, it's not like you're seeing Cubs hats on the South Side, where the White Sox play. But it is telling that there's a gigantic mural of Sammy Sosa painted on a building downtown along the Kennedy Expressway, where Jordan and Dennis Rodman have gone before him. This is the superstar billboard.

The city of Chicago is one of, if not the best baseball town in America. You've got superstars on the South Side in Frank Thomas and Albert Belle. The Cubs have Sosa, Mark Grace and the blossoming Kerry Wood on the scene. The game remains an integral part of the musculature of this city. It is the true measure of just how great the game of baseball is that it has survived the shortsightedness of the people who have run it and played it.

The players and owners know that they took the game to the edge of the abyss, and they would rather not do it again. What Sosa and McGwire have done has helped baseball turn the corner again, much as Babe Ruth did when he started slugging home runs in the 1920s after the Black Sox scandal.

Back then, there was an awful lot of distrust between the players and management. Fans were questioning the integrity of the sport. Babe Ruth came in and started capturing the public's imagination with those legendary blasts, including the 60 home runs he hit in 1927.

By mid-September of last year, fans were in the thick of early-season pro and college football. This year, Sammy Sosa and Mark McGwire have pushed baseball back into the headlines of the sports section with their incredible home-run race. The game is again the No. 1 sport in America, as it should be and always will be as far as I'm concerned.

The image that defines baseball's resurgence here in Chicago, perhaps even more than the crack of one of his stinging line-drive homers, has been Sammy Sosa's singular smile. Like Michael Jordan, Sosa has the smile that lights up a room, a ballpark and this city.

Cubs TV play-by-play voice Chip Caray (WGN) hosts the Fox Saturday Baseball pregame show.

Raves for Favorites: The returns are in

The networks chose wisely, or so it would seem from reader response to our Returning Favorites issue [September 5]. Our detailed plot previews and cast photos drew a range of comment. And, of course, there were those pining for series starting later in the season...as well as those that are no more.

I was anticipating your Returning Favorites special issue [September 5] for many weeks. When it came, I was thrilled. It was good to hear Home Improvement, Buffy the Vampire Slayer, 7th Heaven and many other great shows would be returning. Even though this may be Home Improvement's last season, ABC has many great shows, like Spin City and Dharma & Greg, to follow in its footsteps.

Jason Wells

I enjoyed Returning Favorites, and I'm happy to see my favorite shows returning in early and mid-September. However, once again, we must wait until November for the return of The X-Files. What gives?

Alison Scofield

Did anyone else notice how absolutely alike Calista Flockhart and Sarah Michelle Gellar looked on the cover of Returning Favorites? It just shows how homogeneous TV faces are. Don't get me wrong. I love my TV Guide!

THE KARATE COP

Hung plays Sammo Law, a top-ranking Chinese detective who, in the opener, follows an international crimelord to Los Angeles to locate a missing colleague. Once in L.A., he's teamed with two seasoned cops (Louis Mandylor, Tammy Lauren) who are tracking the gangster in the states. The innovative series combines police drama with fast-paced martial-arts battles and comedic stunts à la Jackie Chan—whom Hung has directed in several films, including 1997's "Mr. Nice Guy." Winship: Tom Wright. Chen Pei Pei: Kelly Hu. Portman: Mike Starr. (1-00)

Madchen Amick,
Malcolm McDowell

Debut: A revamped version of the 1978-84 series, now decidedly darker in tone.

Mr. Roarke is played by Malcolm McDowell, who describes his interpretation of the part as "malevolent, mischievous and Machiavellian." In the opener, Roarke and reluctant assistants Cal and Harry (Louis Lombardi, Edward Hibbert) try to fulfill the fantasies of a married man (John Mese) pining for a former girlfriend, an insecure law student (Marley Shelton) trying to best her elder sister, and a thrill-seeker (Paul Hipp) pursuing the ultimate adventure. Barry Sonnenfeld ("Men in Black") is the executive producer. Ariel Madchen Amick. (1-00)

Jeremy Piven

Debut: A mental patient who believes he is the god of love strives to accomplish a divine mission on Earth in this whimsical new series.

"He has a lot of things going on and a lot of masks," says star Jeremy Piven of Cupid, a.k.a. Trevor Hale. In the opener, Trevor is released from a psychiatric hospital, still maintaining that he cannot return to Mount Olympus until he joins 100 couples in true love. Doubtful about his story is Dr. Claire Allen (Paula Marshall), who oversees Trevor's case upon his release. Of course, she may regret her assignment when he begins working his matchmaking magic on members of her singles therapy group. (1-00)

SUNDAY

TV GUIDELINES

Recommended Viewing...

Movie: Pierce Brosnan made a debonair debut as James Bond in "GoldenEye," an exhilarating ★★ 1995 adventure. —7 PM [5] [16] [33] [25]

Crown and Country takes a royal look at some legendary sites from England's historic past. The series is hosted by Edward Windsor (Prince Edward), who also wrote and produced. —8 PM [11]; 9 PM [30] [39]; 12 mid. [Early Mon.], 3 AM [Early Mon.] [39] [25]

Also of Note...

Baseball: Sammy Sosa wraps up his historic season as the Cubs take on Houston at the Astrodome in the teams' regular-season finale. —1:30 PM [9] [WGN]

Baseball will air if there is a game with playoff implications or an impact on the Mark McGwire-Sammy Sosa home-run derby. —3:30 PM [ESN]

Movie: Brendan Fraser is "George of the Jungle" in this ★★ 1997 comedy that kicks off a new season of The Wonderful World of Disney. Jim Henson's Creature Shop created the amazing animal effects. —6 PM [7] [21] [58] [25]

Movie: "Forever Love." Reba McEntire adds zest to a sentimental 1998 teleplay that touches upon commitment and self-fulfillment in telling the story of a woman who emerges from a 20-year coma. Tim Matheson is subtly effective as McEntire's caring husband. —8 PM [2] [15] [22] [25]

The Practice: Charles Durning guest stars on the third-season opener of the Emmy-winning Best Drama as Bobby's father, who works at a high-profile Boston law firm. See the Close-up on p. 102. —9 PM [7] [21] [58] [25]

Dylan McDermott

The Emmy-winning Best Drama opens a third season with an emotion-packed hour filled with surprises and twists.

Bobby (Dylan McDermott) rethinks his life and profession in the aftermath of an encounter with a drunken driver. The accident prompts Bobby to visit his father (Charles Durning) at the prestigious law firm where he works and invite him to see his son's law office for the first time. Meanwhile, Eugene defends a man (Charles E. Donella) accused of murdering a 16-year-old girl; Ellenor gives a client some potentially criminal advice; and Rebecca shocks everyone with an unexpected revelation. (1.00)

So long, Jimmy Smits from NYPD Blue.
Hello, Rick Schroder? Gag me with a silver spoon.

Pat Calvert
Seattle

In your Returning Favorites issue, I learned that two of my three favorites are returning:
Homicide: Life on the Street and Millennium. My third favorite, Brooklyn South, is not. Pull in your welcome mat, CBS. I won't be coming home.

Helen Rhodes
Harpersville, N.Y.

I read TV GUIDE every week, and looked forward to Returning Favorites. I was disturbed by the article on Party of Five. Matt Roush writes, "Back on track after last season's downbeat detours..." Charlie's bout with cancer was not a downbeat detour, nor was my own cancer experience. I applaud any
TV show and actor that take the challenge

Jorgeann R. Cruz
Yonkers, N.Y.

I'm disappointed that the "big news" for shows like Suddenly Susan, Caroline in the City and Friends seems to be who will end up in the sack. Thank goodness the writers of Just Shoot Me haven't used this as the main hinge of the program. The "will they" or "won't they" on the other shows gets stale.

Linda Schwartz
Portland, Ore.

No! Say it ain't so! The Adventures of Sinbad, F/X: The Series and The Sentinel are not on the returning series list. You might as well just rip the remote out of my hand and tell me Bambi's mom is dead.

Joseph Jerry Crumpler III
Kenly, N.C.

Correspondence should be addressed to Letters address and home telephone number.

TV GUIDE'S MOVIE RATINGS

Theatrical movies are indicated in the daily listings by the symbol M plus a rating of ★★★★ (excellent), ★★★ (good), ★★ (fair) or ★ (poor). Our evaluations are based on a number of factors, including a consensus of leading critics, quality of cast and director, awards earned and box-office performance. Movies may be edited for television; our ratings are based on the original, complete film. An M without stars indicates an unrated theatrical movie. TV GUIDE does not evaluate a movie if the criteria can't be applied because too few facts are known (example: a minor foreign film); or if the film is made-for-television (indicated with MOT) or direct-to-video (MV).

TV GUIDELINES

Recommended Viewing...

□ Movie: The second installment in John Ford's cavalry trilogy, 1949's "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon" ★★ ★★ casts John Wayne as an aging officer faced with one final challenge. —1 PM (TBS) (55)

□ Movie: 1971's "Man in the Wilderness" ★★ ★. After his success in "A Man Called Horse" (1970), actor Richard Harris again teamed with producer Sanford Howard for another gritty wilderness-survival story—about an explorer who's left for dead by his party after he's mauled by a grizzly bear. —3 AM [Early Tues.] (A&E) (55)

Also of Note...

□ A five-hour Little Bear Marathon finds the cuddly cub dressing for a snowy day and blasting off to the moon. —8 AM (NIX) (55)

□ Movie: Jennifer Aniston's love life is anything but "Picture Perfect" in this ★★ 1997 romance about an ad exec, her faux fiancé and an office lothario, played by Kevin Bacon. —2:05 PM (MAX)

□ Unsigned artists hope to make The Cut in this new musical-talent showcase series. If they do, they become eligible to make a music video that will air on MTV. —4 PM (MTV)

□ NFL Football: The Detroit Lions host the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in an NFC Central clash —7:20 PM (7) (21) (55)

□ The Metropolitan Opera Presents Saint-Saens' "Samson et Dalila," starring superstar tenor Placido Domingo. —8 PM (30) (39); 2 AM [Early Tues.] (39) (55)

□ Country-music performances and comments from drivers are used to salute stock-car racing on Racin' and Rockin': 50 Years of NASCAR. —9 PM, 1 AM [Early Tues.] (TNN) (55)

SPORTS CLOSE-UP

BASEBALL PLAYOFFS

The postseason begins with Division Series play. Once again, every game is being televised on a national basis, with ESPN, NBC and Fox splitting the coverage. (Live)
There's baseball fever heading into the playoffs, thanks to one of the most exciting regular seasons in some time. While the Nation was captivated by the Mark McGwire-Sammy Sosa home-run derby, the Yankees were setting the record for the fastest team in baseball history to get to 100 wins. "There's no doubt there's more pressure on the Yankees than anyone else," says commentator Joe Morgan. "But they're better equipped to handle it—they are a team, with a team-first attitude."
In the National League, perennial contender Atlanta finds itself battling for the favorite's role with Houston and San Diego, the other division winners. "I still think the Braves are the team to beat," says Morgan, "but it's just the slightest edge I'm giving them."

Here's a schedule for the first round.

DIVISION SERIES

HIGHER EDUCATION

After seven seasons playing the Taylors' middle son Randy, Jonathan Taylor Thomas leaves the series to "focus more on my studies" and prepare for college. Thus, Randy finds himself suddenly selected to join girlfriend Lauren (Courtney Peldon) on a study of the rain forest... in Costa Rica... for a year. That doesn't totally thrill Jill, so Tim decides to "fix things" by relating—and overstating—her feelings to Randy, who grudgingly drops out of the program. But after chastisement from Jill and the obligatory chat with neighbor Wilson, Tim admits that he's the one who hates the idea of a year away from Randy (Thomas is due to appear in a holiday episode later this season).

FACING HER DEMONS

Sarah Michelle Gellar

The emotional third-season opener finds the Slayer striking out on her own.

After killing Angel and getting kicked out by her mom last season, Buffy (Sarah Michelle Gellar) fled Sunnydale. Hoping to find meaner pastures she moved to the city, where she intends to keep a low profile by assuming a new identity. But as Giles hunts for his missing pupil and the gang takes care of the slaying, Buffy is pulled back into the game when a devilish stranger begins preying on homeless teens. The encounter takes Buffy to Hell and back (literally) forcing her to examine her past and the anguish she's caused those she left behind. (1:00)

A FELICIOUS DEBUT

Keri Russell

Debut: This captivating coming-of-age drama stars Keri Russell as Felicity, a naive college freshman "struggling to find a way in the world," says Matt Reeves, who serves as co-creator with J.J. Abrams. She's "a virgin to many experiences and we're going to...spend a lot of time exploring her firsts," adds Reeves. In the opener, Felicity gets the guts to ask longtime crush Ben (Scott Speedman) to sign her high-school yearbook. "What he writes inspires her—in this crazy, spontaneous moment—to change her life plan and [follow him] to New York," says Abrams. Noel: Scott Foley. Julie: Amy Jo Johnson (1:00)

FAITH, HOPE AND COMEDY
Faith Ford

Debut: Faith Ford stars in this engaging comedy about a vivacious and vulnerable woman who returns to her home-town roots.

Ford shines as the title character who, in the opener, leaves her unfaithful husband and goes back to her childhood home in Indiana to live with her somewhat befuddled mother (Shirley Knight). Maggie initially plans to stay with her mom just until she can get out on her own, but she decides to stick around after a bittersweet reunion with friends—and with an old high-school flame (Vincent Ventresca). The strong ensemble cast includes Alex Kapp Horner, Jenny Robertson and Brian Haley.

SARINDIPITY

Vondie Curtis-Hall

The fifth-season opener finds staff members facing a number of options.

First, Austin (Emmy-winner Christine Lahti) must make critical choices when she's faced with a patient in need of a heart transplant and a heart is dropped, almost literally, in her lap—by a publicity-seeking physician (Harley Jane Kozak) who specializes in assisted suicide. Meanwhile, ex-surgeon Shutt (Adam Arkin), who's recovered from his aneurysm, weighs a return to the OR. But ER staffers find they have few options in dealing with a sarin-gas attack on a bank—an assault that fells many, including Hancock (Vondie Curtis-Hall). (1:00)

FRIDAY

Recommended Viewing...

☐ Movie: Emma Thompson won an Oscar for her superb performance in Howards End, a ★★★★★ 1992 drama that also stars Anthony Hopkins, Best Supporting Actress nominee Vanessa Redgrave and Helena Bonham Carter. Adapted from the E.M. Forster novel, Ruth Praver Jhabvala's Oscar-winning screenplay centers on the lives of two sisters in Edwardian England. —11:30 AM (MAX)

☐ Movie: "The King and I." Yul Brynner won an Oscar for his portrayal of the haughty monarch in this 1956 ★★★★★ adaptation of the Rodgers and Hammerstein Broadway musical. Songs include "Getting to Know You." —3:30 PM (AMC)

Also of Note...

☐ Movie: In 1997's "Anaconda" ★★, Jon Voight chews the scenery as a snake hunter—while a 40-foot snake chews the rest of the cast. —11 AM, 7 PM (HBO)

☐ An engaging Boy Meets World reveals whether Topanga's cold feet thaw out—or sink into a deep freeze. —7:30 PM (7, 21, 53)

☐ Buddy Faro gets down to business in the series' second episode. His first client: George Hamilton (appearing as himself). —8 PM (2, 15, 22)

☐ Millennium launches its third season with a disturbing two-parter propelled by an investigation into an aircraft disaster. Klea Scott (Brooklyn South) joins the cast as a sensitive and intrepid FBI agent. —8 PM (23, 32), 9 PM (53)

☐ Movie: Sally Field in her 1976 Emmy-winning role as "Sybil," a tormented woman with multiple personalities. —2:05 AM [Early Sat.], 4:05 AM [Early Sat.] (7)

TV GUIDE'S MOVIE SYMBOLS AND RATINGS

Theatrical movies are indicated in the daily listings by the symbol M plus a rating of + (excellent), ++ (good), ++ (fair) or + (poor). Our evaluations are based on a number of factors, including a consensus of leading critics, quality of cast and director, awards earned and box-office performance. Movies may be edited for television, our ratings are based on the original, complete film. An M without stars indicates an unrated theatrical movie. TV GUIDE does not evaluate movies if the criteria can't be applied because too few facts are known (example: a minor foreign film), or if the film is made-for-television (indicated with MOT) or direct-to-video (MOTV).

PARENTAL GUIDANCE

The official MPAA content rating (G, PG, PG-13, R or NC-17) is provided for every film that has received one (NR: not rated). We also offer advisories about content (adult themes, sexual situations, strong language, violence or nudity), but parents should be aware that films containing adult themes or sexual situations frequently involve nudity, even though our advisory may not explicitly say so.

THE TV GUIDE HOROSCOPE

BY SALLY BROMPTON

♈ ARIES (March 21-April 20): Don't be put off by the zany behavior of someone with whom you live or work. It could be the spark that turns an ember of an idea into a flame. A laid-back approach will be more conducive to realizing its potential.
For your extended Aries horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5554*

♉ TAURUS (April 21-May 21): You may think you know best when it comes to the well-being of a dependent or loved one, but convincing that person may be difficult. A change of signs by your diplomatic ruler Venus will assist you, but a gentle approach is now essential.
For your extended Taurus horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5555*

♊ GEMINI (May 22-June 21): The more adventurous and outrageous you feel this week, the better. The eccentric influence of Uranus on your ruler Mercury is urging you to push back boundaries. Much can be achieved and enjoyed. Whatever happens, you won't be bored.
For your extended Gemini horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5556*

♋ CANCER (June 22-July 23): With family pressures at their most extreme just now, there are signs that someone close is about to drop a bombshell. It shouldn't be too much of a problem if you are willing to compromise. The long-term effects could even benefit you.
For your extended Cancer horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5557*

♌ LEO (July 24-Aug. 23): Something that is just beginning to take shape has the potential to turn into a great idea. However, careful planning is vital, so don't attempt to push the pace or your luck. What you learn is as important as what you earn.
For your extended Leo horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5558*

♍ VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23): Frustrations over work or finances seem to be distracting you from the things that really matter. You need to take a careful look at your long-term plans and priorities. With your analytical ruler Mercury in sparkling form, you won't need to look too far.
For your extended Virgo horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5559*

♎ LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23): There will be no shortage of choices this week—both at home and work. The only problem will be deciding which path to take. Remembering what happened this time last year will make the decision easier.

For your extended Libra horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5564*

♏ SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23): Something seems to be nagging away at the back of your mind, but you can't quite put your finger on it. When you eventually figure it out, you'll wonder what all the fuss was about. Until then there's nothing you can do, so stop worrying.

For your extended Scorpio horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5565*

♐ SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Unless you appreciate the value of what you are and what you have, you will never realize your potential. With cosmic forces focusing on ambitions, you must recognize your talents. You know how good you are. Now prove it.

For your extended Sagittarius horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5566*

♑ CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20): You can't prepare or plan for everything. Because the influence of Uranus may lead to a few surprises, you'll have to play a professional or financial matter by ear. Keep your nerve and the outcome will be positive.

For your extended Capricorn horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5567*

♒ AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19): You will find it hard to see anyone's point of view besides your own this week. Therefore, be wary of trusting your judgment or antagonizing someone you need. You may not feel you require support in a current venture, but you do.

For your extended Aquarius horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5568*

♓ PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20): All your relationships should prosper this week, thanks to a splendid Venus-Neptune alliance. So don't be shy about making those you love and respect aware of the fact. It may come as a surprise, but your feelings are likely to be reciprocated.

For your extended Pisces horoscope, call: 1-900-825-5569*
